The loss of a friend is like that of a limb, time may heal the anguish of the wound but the loss cannot be repaired. — Southley

William Anthony Martin
February 14, 1977 - August 26, 1994

John Robert Mellon
May 26, 1978 - August 26, 1994

Billy and John were not just neighbors, they were best friends. Everyone agrees that they had the best summer of their lives. But, they didn't accomplish this themselves, they had great friends that made their times even better. The stories and memories are retold frequently, of how they loved Pink Floyd, playing pool and hanging in the streets. Their friends and family will remember their fascination with their dream car and how they couldn't wait to hang out with the guys after school. John and Billy would want us to smile when we think of their silly laughs and unforgettable journeys. Even though they are gone, we will always remember.

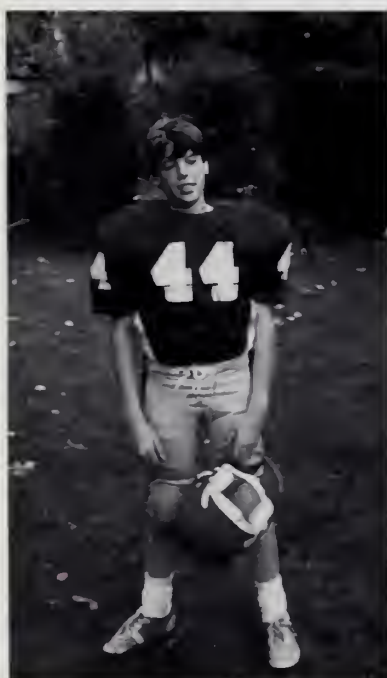

*I'll lend you for a little time
A child of mine, God said for you'll love while he lives and mourn for when he's dead*

God's Lent Child

Now will you give him all your love nor think the labor vain nor hate me when I come to call to take him back again

*He'll bring his charms to gladden you and shall his stay be brief
You'll have the lovely memories as solace for your grief*

But shall the angels call for him much sooner than we planned we'll brave the bitter grief that comes and try to understand.

Dedication to Patricia Semrau-Holloway
For her dedication and commitment to teaching and the advancement of the arts through the Class of 1995 and the Timaron yearbook

When we were freshmen, we arrived at MHS without an advisor, that special person who was to be our mentor and guide throughout high school. Yet, one staff member took charge of the Class of 1995, and has since led us on to success and graduation. It was apparent that no one quite knew what they were to do at that first meeting of the freshmen council. But, that did not stop the ambitious advisor and group of fledgling high schoolers. Since then, Patricia Semrau-Holloway, has worked with the class officers to insure that the Class of 1995 shows their full potential. Whether it was creating ideas for the Christmas float, organizing carnivals, or giving us all hot chocolate in her Caravan, Mrs. Holloway has always been there for us.

Besides being an advisor, "Penguin" or "Mom", as she is affectionately known to a few, has excelled elsewhere. Being the only staff in the art department, she shows dedication to improving the school by allowing students to paint the art room windows and murals throughout the school and helping other faculty and organizations with projects, in addition to her classes. She has been a helpful addition to the Speech and Theatre Workshop who she had helped with the set for a few years, and whoever else needed to borrow paint, tape, or paper. Plus she has taken over the hectic and consuming job of Advisor to the Timaron yearbook. With her artistic expertise, she has developed a new and exciting format for the upcoming generations.

Because of her dedication to teaching and school activities, both the graduating Class of 1995 and the 1995 Timaron Yearbook staff would like to thank Mrs. Holloway for these past four years by dedicating the Timaron to her, and to let her know that we will always remember her!

THANK YOU, MRS. H!

Every Time I Travel, I Never Really Appreciate Where I Have Been Until The Time Has Past And I Have Left That Place, And Am Wherever I Must Be. Although I Have Pictures Of Faces And Places That Meant So Much To Me, I Never Can Really Remember Exactly How I Felt Or How I Expressed Myself To Make It Such A Great Experience. I Know That I Will Feel Exactly The Same Way When I Leave High School.

I Can Identify With The Freshmen

From Beginning to End . . . We Express Ourselves . . .

Every Year. It Is So Overwhelming To Come From The Old Junior High With Its Squeaky Floors To The Newer, Polished MHS With Four-Hundred More People To Face Each Day Along With Daily Trials And Tribulations. But, From Day One Of My Freshman Year, I Could Not Wait Until The Last Day Of My Senior Year. I Think At One Point I Actually Sat Down With

Some Friends And Counted Exactly How Many Days There Were From The Start To The Finish Of High School (1467).

Every Day Went By So Quickly In The Next Four Years And Now I Only Remember A Few Experiences, And They Were Life-Shattering Incidents That Changed My Life — Like With Whom I Went To The Prom And The Day I Got My License — Not The Little Things — Like Who Ate At My Lunch Table My Freshman Year

Or Who Got Hit With A Hockey Puck In 2nd Period Gym Class. It Was All Those Little Ways That I Expressed Myself, Whether In Sports, Student Government, Academics Or Not At All, That I Wish I Could Remember. And That Is Where The Timaron's "Express Yourself — 1995" Theme Comes In.

With These Pictures, Write-Ups And Re-Caps In The Next 140 Pages, Hopefully You, Too, Can Keep Counting The Days Until Graduation, Knowing That You Will Always Have Your Yearbook To Remind You Of How Different People Expressed Themselves — By Being A Leader, Being A Follower Or Being That Shy Person Sitting In The Back Of Class. But, Better Yet, Still Look Around At

MdS And Pay Attention To The Details Now. Soon You Will Be A Senior And Be At The Same Point In Time Where You Will Not Remember How You and Your Friends Expressed Themselves As Individuals, Classmates And Athletes At Your First Pep Rally ... And As You Walk Out Of The Gymnasium At Graduation You Might Actually Miss All The Ways Of Expressing Yourself At MdS.

... AS A SCHOLAR

Riiiiinnnggg! Oh, No! I'm late for my next class! Wait! What is my next class? It's Wednesday. Is that gym or study? No. It's lab and my notebook is in my locker! Where can I get a late pass?

Sound familiar? It is, if you're in high school almost anywhere in the US. School, that's the place we've spent the greater part of our lives so far. Every 47 minutes, we rush from one class to another, going up and down stairs, trying to fit in a trip to our lockers or even grab a drink from the bubbler (if it works and we're brave). Every day, 180 days a year for 4 whole years, we're at the mercy of that ring. And for what purpose?

Read'n, writ'n and 'rithmatic. That's why. By the time we finish our four years at MHS, all of us will have taken 4 years of English, 2 years of math, 2 of science and 2 of social studies plus phys ed. If you're college bound, you'll need the English plus an extra year of math and science as well as 2 years of a foreign language. To get the 90 credits to graduate, we'll also take a number of electives in various departments.

Electives are the one place we can express our likes and dislikes; as well as explore subjects that might lead us to a career after high school. It's a chance to try something new and different. Take a business course, maybe it'll spark an interest in owning and operating your own someday. Take foods and who knows, you may become a famous chef or you might want to try computers. You may be the next multimillionaire at 25 just because you took a computer class in high school. For the artistic, there are art courses, wood shop and tech drawing. For the musician, there's a wide range of opportunities from band to Acappella choir and piano. Interested in video and film or drama? There's an elective offered for you, too.

But what would classes be like without the teachers? Ask any student who their favorite teacher is and they'll tell you; just like they can tell you who they don't like. Funny thing is — my favorite teacher is the one you don't like. If you're lucky, you'll find that special teacher who is the one that awakens in you a dream or a goal and it is that teacher who helps you realize that you can set a goal and reach it. Mine is . . .

Opps! There's that bell again. Can't be late for class.

ACADEMICS . . .

IN CONTROL

Administration Leads the Way.

The administration is made up of many people who are responsible for the day-to-day running of the school, such as handling discipline, setting the master class schedule, handling finances and working with parents, teachers, students and the community at large. In addition to the principal, vice principal and assistant to the principal, secretaries and student office assistants contribute a lot to the running of the school. From answering the phones, looking up student schedules, doing the principal's correspondence to distributing passes, etc., etc., etc. These people work long, hard hours.

Mr. McCarthy, an eight year veteran of MHS, is the newest addition to the administrative staff. He made the transition from history teacher to vice-principle in 1992 when Mr. Wassel left and Mr.

Brooks became principal. Mr. McCarthy says he likes every aspect of his job, from the minute he gets here in the morning until the end of the day which is about five o'clock. He doesn't think that the administration needs any major adjustments although he would like to see all the records computerized. Unfortunately, the student body doesn't feel the same way. Here are a few of them . . .

"They should have surveillance of smokers in the bathrooms."

"Administrators should be tougher on discipline." NOTE: Mr. McCarthy said something about in-school suspensions should be on Saturday.

The most interesting was: "I think they should dress better." You guessed it, comment by a freshman.

When asked if he likes being a teacher or being an administrator best, Mr. McCarthy replies, "I don't know yet. There are pros and cons to both. I could tell you in another eight years." Sorry, Mr. McCarthy, we can't wait that long.

(t-b;l-r) K. Romer, J. Martins, L. Holmes, J. Waite, C. Voci, J. St. Martin, N. Place.

Mrs. Fuce, guidance secretary, doing what she does best . . . helping.

When asked what Mr. Connell likes most about being a guidance counselor, he said, "Helping students move forward and go on to better things."

Guidance lends a helping hand.

Need help? Go to the guidance office. In the guidance office, the counselors are there for personal counseling as well as for educational and career counseling. The three counselors have helped a countless number of seniors choose where to go to college and how to do all the paper work to get an application and financial aid forms completed. Many seniors have also learned about scholarships and financial aid through Mrs. Chase, Miss Helfrich, or Mr. Connell.

This year, the students have an advantage with trying to find a college because of a new computer system installed in the guidance office. The name of this system is Aces. Every student, no matter what grade you are in, is allowed to come in during their studies to learn about colleges they might be interested in. However, guidance counselors don't just help seniors, but help underclassmen with scheduling and course selection as well as prepare for their eventual college or career choice. Guidance isn't just for the student heading on to college.

The counselors are not the only people helping at the guidance office. Each year, students are allowed to sign up as office assistants. Throughout the year, students come in during their studies and help with the filing, copying, and errands. The office assistants for this year are Laurie Holmes, Jessica Martins, Naomi Place, Kristin Romer, Jennifer St. Martin, Camella Voci, and Jennifer Waite.

Guidance counselors, Mrs. Chase, Miss Helfrich, and Mr. Connell, pause for a picture with secretary, Mrs. Fuce, during a busy day at the office.

OUR GUIDING LIGHT

ARTISTICALLY AND MUSICALLY . . .

Just two of the ways students at MHS can express themselves.

We are taught from the time we start kindergarten that academics are the most important part of our education, and will be until we graduate twelve years later. This is not always true. Some of the most memorable things we will ever learn are taught to us through the arts. For instance, we might not always remember the formula for the area of a circle, but who could forget Mr. Clinton's annual demonstration on correct breathing techniques? We will probably soon forget how a participle phrase can act, but we will remember forever the colors on a color wheel that we learned in Mrs. Holloway's class.

The art and music departments are overflowing with self-expression. Where else can you express your feelings in a drawing (and even get to paint it on an art room window)? And how about expressing yourself through singing or even playing an instrument . . . well, for some of us it's a way to let out the feelings trapped inside your soul. Music and art are basically about expressing feelings and thoughts that are often hard to express with words. The arts are another language to explain what you are thinking. You can lose yourself in a drawing or a song, forget about the math test you just took, or the chemistry test looming in front of you next period. And when you have finally finished your work of art, or sung your song for an audience, the feeling of satisfaction you get is different from the satisfaction you get when you ace a history test exam. That drawing or song, or tune you played, it's a part of you. You created it, and worked on it, and it represents a special part of you that you can't express any other way.

Without art and music, without beautiful things to look at or listen to, life would be very dismal and boring. The artists and musicians of MHS help make us aware that there is a creative side to all of us.

"You can't go through high school without the arts."
— Kelly Renfrew
"I think the arts are a great way for people to express themselves and be the person they really are without worrying about being ridiculed or criticized." — Greg Bell
"I think they are important and should be mandatory for everyone." — Heather Medas
"The arts are an adventure." — Becky Pullman

Whether through painting, performing, creating, or just fooling around, the arts are a great way to express ourselves.

HANDS-ON EXPERIENCE

In the Kitchen and In the Shop.

When you are sitting in English, do you learn how to bake a cake or boil water? And when you're in physics, do you learn how to build a better birdhouse or book shelf?

Most likely, the answer is no. Well, here at MHS, these are just two of the departments in which you can express yourself by using your hands as well as your mind. These are students who believe that shop and home economics courses are really important to take in high school because these classes can help you after you graduate. They can give you the knowledge and skills for different jobs.

Shop used to be called Industrial Arts and now includes sections in Woods and Technical Drawing on the first floor between the DECA store and the Boys Locker room, you will find the shop and tech drawing rooms. In Mr. Majuri's classes in Woods, you can learn, among other things, how to cut and sand wood; you learn how to build things from beginning to end and you can choose what you are building. This choice makes the class more interesting for many students. In Tech Drawing you learn how to use a t-square, compass and how to draft. You need to like detail and being exact to enjoy this course. Although there are mostly males in these classes, they really are open to everyone. So, ladies grab a hammer and learn a new skill.

FOOD, GLORIOUS FOOD. Hungry, anyone? Take Foods with Mrs. Selig. Obviously just from its title, you know why many students take these courses. They like to eat, but that's not all you do. You learn about nutrition, calorie intake and how to read a recipe, too. Students who have taken foods have gone on to work in local restaurants and into careers in food service industry. Home Economics is just limited to Foods I and II this year because Mrs. Selig is only here part time, but she hopes to expand the program to include classes in child care in the near future. Oh and don't forget to do the dishes.

Nathaniel Vaughn gets hands-on experience and shows the proper way to use a hand mixer.

Business and Marketing Makes Sense.

Have you ever gone to the mall, shopping, ordered from a mail catalogue, seen a commercial on television? Of course, you have! — and when you did, you were involved in the consumer side of business and marketing. The students in business classes are receiving entry level skills in courses that can lead to careers — some right out of high school. You can take accounting, record keeping and even word processing. Each of the teachers try to convince the students to reach their potential and when the student recognizes this, the students set their own class goals and even their future. The main aim is to introduce students to the working business world and to give them the knowledge they need to be successful. Some students will go on to college and become accountants or work in banks, others will enter the work force immediately.

Under the umbrella of the business department, you will find a special marketing program taught and advised by Mr. White. Called DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) for short, the students combine book knowledge with hands-on experience by running the local school store and developing projects which the students take with them to local, state and national competitions. Open to juniors and seniors only, most DECA students have jobs outside the school in which they have a chance to use the ideas and skills from their courses. Often, these students come back to MHS with trophies and scholarships to help them in their futures.

DOLLARS AND ¢ ¢ ¢'S

JOINING THE INFORMATION SUPER HIGHWAY . . .

MHS Begins Its Journey.

Wires, wires everywhere, but not a desk to sit at. That's what many of the students at MHS were thinking when their computer classes were held in the cafeteria for almost a month. New computers were installed not only in the computer labs, but also in the business rooms. These weren't the first new computers at MHS though. The science department has a computer in almost every classroom, not to mention the ones in Mr. Battis' "secret room"; even the yearbook got a new computer this year!

The world is fast becoming computerized, and heaven forbid if you don't know the difference between ROM and RAM (not to be confused with Romulus and Remus in World History) or what you do with a mouse (you don't feed it to your cat). All kidding aside, MHS is working hard to become part of the Information Super Highway through the Tech 2000 initiative. This program is the integration of technology into all areas of the curriculum, including Language Arts, Math, Science, Social Studies, Foreign Language, Specialist Areas, and Health (Tech 2000 Committee Proposal — March 1994). Mr. James Catalini, our Director of Educational Technology, oversees this project, and Mr. Keich introduces the students through Computer Applications. Computer technology isn't confined to the Computer Application course, almost all of the business classes are computer oriented as well.

In the next few years, it is hoped that six more computers will be added to the science and math departments. Eventually, every classroom in these departments will have a minimum of six computers for laboratory, research, instruction, and project work. Just think, in the year 2000, maybe every student and teacher will have their own computer in class. We won't have to carry note books, text books, or even pens and pencils! Yes, MHS is on the right track in providing students with an education that involves computer literacy along with reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic.

Business assistants Malcom Putnam and Katie LaRosa have already begun their journey.

"WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT COMPUTERS?"

"That's an evil word in my house."

— Larry Burke, junior.

"You can do work on them quicker."

— Rick Russo, freshman.

"What's a computer?" — Lori Gaudet and Megan Curtis, sophomores.

"I'm a computer junkie!" — Mrs. Russell, chemistry teacher.

"Computers are useless. They can only give answers." — Pablo Picasso, cubist.

"I think they're wonderful. Computers enable people to be exposed to a plethora of knowledge." — Miss Westgate, chemistry teacher.

▲ Mrs. Hegarty may be wondering if she'll ever have a classroom as she looks in to see how the workers are doing.

Linguistically Speaking . . .

Did you know that only 6% of the world's population speaks English? So — what does the rest of the world speak? More than 500 official languages and dialects exist and of those, the top ranking language is Mandarin Chinese followed by Hindu and Spanish.

In the United States 14% of the population speak a language other than English. Of that 14%, 7% speak Spanish followed by French. Spanish is ten times more commonly used than French. Russian ranks fifteenth in America usage.

Middleborough High boasts that it is one of the only High Schools in the state of Massachusetts that offers Russian as part of its foreign language department. With this in their favor, many alumni of M.H.S. have gone on to further education or even jobs that involve their Russian experience here.

The French department offers trips to France for upperclassmen, so that they may get hands-on experience in the language they study every day for up to four years. Although the Spanish courses offered are the newest ones in the department, they are very popular. Why? Because "it seems like everyone speaks Spanish," says senior Deneen Fernandes. Deneen's not too far off. Over 20 billion people on the earth speak Spanish!!

Melissa Duphily and Leah Gillis have been to France three times as part of a school to school exchange program with a lycée in Grenoble, France. They have hosted French students in their homes and while in France, they've been to the Riviera, the Alps, the Chateau country and of course, Paris as well as living with French families and attending school.

Things students like about English . . .

"I like writing" — Julie Jones, junior.

"I like class discussions" — Kaisa Holloway, senior.

"I like doing book reports" — Kelly Renfrew, senior.

"My teacher picks interesting things to write about" — Frank Place, freshman.

. . . And some things they don't like:

"I don't like doing the speeches from Julius Caesar" — Garrett Holloway.

"My teacher's endless lectures . . ." — anonymous, junior.

"Homework . . ." — Dan Makarski, junior.

Eleanor Osborne is always ready to explain English literature to her students, as she does here with Kristyn Bailey.

"From Steinbeck to Shakespeare"

MHS students start their journey through literature with The Pearl, by John Steinbeck. Every freshman receives one of those small, hard-covered books. It's probably the first time many of us have ever read Steinbeck, and, outside of school, probably the last. By the end of freshman year we've read The Old Man and the Sea, Romeo and Juliet, Great Expectations, Animal Farm, and Brave New World.

Sophomore year we are exposed for the first time to modern drama: "Twelve Angry Men," "The Romancers," and "Our Town." If we're lucky, we get to act them out in class. (Everyone in Mrs. Desrosiers' class always remember "The Wall".)

American Literature, from the Puritans to Edgar Allen Poe, is the focus of our junior year. We learn not only about literature, but history as well. If we didn't know much about the Pilgrims at the beginning of the year, we'll know more than we ever wanted to at the end.

By our last year, the honors students are ready for Mr. Simmons. This is the teacher who creates his own text book, The English Literary Tradition, each year. They tackle Beowulf, The Canterbury Tales, and Hamlet, by Shakespeare. Mr. Simmons, class is, as one student said, "An intellectual trip . . ." another finds it "Baffling."

College classes also study British literature, among the books they read are Macbeth and The Tempest. Standard classes study more contemporary literature, reading books such as Lord of the Flies.

Of course, we study more than just literature during our four years at Middleboro High. Students also learn how to express themselves with words by learning grammar, writing, and vocabulary skills.

GRAMMATICALLY SPEAKING . . .

GLOBALLY CHALLENGED Find Your Roots in the Social Studies Department.

Everyday, through the Social Studies Department, students have the opportunity to travel to distant lands, to travel back in time, and to experience other cultures. Most students study beyond the required courses of World History in their freshman year and U.S. History in their junior year, and take courses offered in the areas of geography, area studies, government, American Indians, modern history, and the history of Middleborough. Some even choose to become an assistant, and aid the teachers, in correcting and gathering materials.

The current curriculum for the Social Studies department consists of thirteen courses that are offered on Honors, College, Standard and Basic levels, and are open to all students in their years at MHS. Each class involves participation in reading and writing skills, as well as class discussions. Term and regular papers are required for the more advanced levels. An extensive collection of filmstrips, movies and additional literature that has been accumulated by the department over previous years to supplement and enrich the curriculum. In order to improve the department, a four-year strategic plan has been implemented in which electives such as Psychology, Senior Independent study, Contemporary World Affairs, and area studies in Asia, Africa, N. America, and Latin America will be offered. Further plans include the addition of a new teacher to the existing faculty, as well as integrating classes with other departments. Advanced Placement classes will be added with an AP U.S. History class scheduled to be the first in the fall of 1995.

The student support team of the Social Studies Department include assistants (t-b; l-r), J. Mullaney, A. St. Martin, K. Asmussen, C. Molina, S. Struder, M. Cook, E. Stevens, C. Hilton, C. Kelly, J. Lowe, T. J. Lavin, G. Bell, E. McKenna and D. Ross.

The Social Studies department is staffed by six teachers who have taught here at MHS for anywhere between 2 and many, many years. (In order from left to right) Mrs. P. McKenna has been here for five years, and in addition to teaching, she is also the sophomore class advisor. Ms. S. Miller, who graduated from Immaculate College, has been teaching at MHS for two years. Mr. J. Majuri, who teaches American Indians, is also a teacher in Industrial Arts. Mr. C. Bichsel, who sits as the department head, joined MHS 26.5 years ago with degrees in Government and Political Science. Mr. Keich, proud father of a new baby boy, Jonathan, is a favorite teacher of the senior American Government class, as well as computer classes. Mr. L. D. Howard III has incorporated his hobby of research into his classroom curriculum for the past twenty years. Mrs. D. Thayer, is also advisor of the Class of 1997, and enjoys teaching History of Middleborough, World History and Area Studies.

The McAfee Library helps the M.H.S. students attain the necessary skills for putting information that they collect to good use. At the Library, a student can do the usual things that one can do at a library, like take out books and use encyclopedias. In addition to these useful sources, a student can use a wide variety of electronic research. These resources in CD Newsband, a CD Rom program offering newspaper articles from hundreds of newspapers across the country and from international wire services. This program indexes and abstracts the most recent ten years of periodical literature.

If you don't want to sit in study you can use the library as a quiet atmosphere for reading, research and yes, you can study. Class instruction and small group instruction is offered to support classroom projects. Remember taking out books for Mrs. Osborne and trying to sign up only to find that the library was closed for computer projects. Mrs. Twomey and Mrs. Cowan, the library staff, look forward to serving students' reading interests and information needs. Just remember to ask QUIETLY!

Who's taping? It's Video Tech! That's who. This class introduces students to the field of Video Technology and television production. After they learn how to use the equipment, they get to practice on us at the library, in our study halls and at lunch. Once these projects have been completed and shown to Mr. Hilsabeck, they are assigned more important tasks. These would include taping the musical concerts here at the high school, and other school-related events. If the students show improvement, they are given very big responsibilities such as Video Yearbook and taping programs for the Middleborough Cable Channel. Some students also get a great opportunity to work on activities at Ocean Spray. So if you are walking down the hall and see students with television cameras coming towards you, don't run away, you might BECOME A STAR!

"At every age and ability, we need to know our numbers."

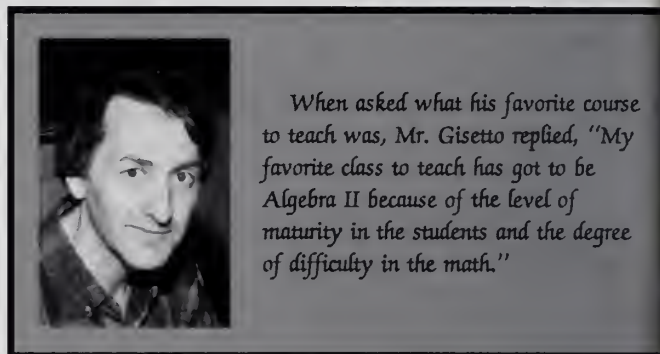

When we were in elementary school, mathematics was as easy as "one plus one is two, two plus two is four." As we grew older, the mathematics got more complicated in learning subtraction, multiplication, and division with the use of radicals, fractions and variables. Not only did the math get more difficult but the use of our calculators did too; from a four function calculator, to a scientific calculator, to graphing calculators.

The math courses at Middleborough High School include general math, algebra I, geometry, algebra II, trigonometry and calculus. Mr. Savicki says, "My favorite class to teach is math for life, because it shows the practical uses of math in one's daily life. Such as with the use of credit cards and in getting loans."

Sophomore, Joe Hufault commented, "I like math, even though it's difficult." General math may come easy to some students but to others it takes a lot of hard work and dedication. Many students here at MHS work hard in this course in order to move on to more complicated courses so that they may continue their college education.

The advanced students of both trigonometry and calculus have made the decisions of taking these courses to be one step ahead with their college education. Although these courses are quite difficult the students work hard so that they may excel in their college education.

When asked what his favorite course to teach was, Mr. Gisetto replied, "My favorite class to teach has got to be Algebra II because of the level of maturity in the students and the degree of difficulty in the math."

FALLING EGGS AND FORMALDEHYDE

The age old question answered: where do the eggs and formaldehyde come from?

Have you ever wondered why you may have seen an egg plummeting from above while staring out the window; why the hall near Mrs. Dodge's room always has the faint scent of formaldehyde? These answers and more can easily be obtained by the teachers and most of the students who are involved in the science department. Most of the students at MHS have taken one or more of the classes offered in the science department. These include biology, earth science, physics, chemistry, oceanography, and anatomy. The teachers are well acquainted with the students since two years of science are required to graduate.

Students are encouraged to take higher levels of science because new technology makes this a more demanding field. There are two second-level science courses available at the high school — Biology II Honors and Chemistry II Honors. Chemistry II was just added this year for students wishing to pursue a career in the sciences. Laser disks and new microscopes are some of the newer tools used to enhance science curriculum.

So the next time you see eggs falling from the sky, or are sickened by the smell in the third floor hall, know that the science department is hard at work.

Jess Murphy is ready and waiting for a new lesson in her science class.

Rebecca Holmes and Sandra Melloul help out the science department by keeping up with the garden work.

Mrs. Dodge, one of the three biology teachers at MHS was voted by the seniors as their favorite teacher. Mrs. Dodge told the yearbook of her desire to become a teacher. Since the third grade, science was her favorite subject and she used these two interests to form her career.

In an interview with junior, Julie Jones;
Do you like Gym?
I love gym because it's so involved and it's a nice change of pace.
What is your favorite activity in gym?
Floor hockey, you get to be aggressive.
What is your least favorite activity?
Darts because it's so boring.

Phys. Ed and Health work with the whole person.

In phys ed. you can participate in a number of sports throughout the year such as football, soccer, darts, par course, ultimate Frisbee, team handball, volleyball, basketball, softball, gymnastics, wrestling and circuit training, just to name a few. The staff of Mr. Michael Perry, Mrs. Pat Freitas, Mr. Dennis Green, Mr. Bill Lawrence and Athletic Director, Mr. Dave Paling, attempt to incorporate the main objective of the game in a few ways. As a freshman, you learn the rules and general procedure of the game. Sophomore year, you practice skills and review situations in the game. Junior year, you review all skills and rules that you have learned and try to execute the game in an orderly fashion. Senior year you are able to participate from the very beginning of the class, spending a little time on the game review.

The staff works hard trying to teach their co-ed classes. Each class meets at least two times a week, all year, unless you are a senior, and then you are required to take only a half-year of gym class. Class size can range anywhere from eight to eighty people and participation is mandatory to graduate.

Health Education is also a required course. Freshmen are scheduled for three days per week for one semester. The curriculum includes alcohol and drug education, human sexuality and stress management. While in health students are also given a chance to learn CPR.

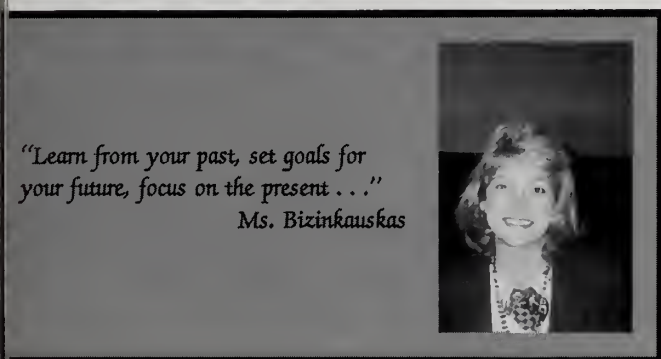

When you mention anything to do with physical education and health, you need to think about the role of the nurses in our building. Although physicals are no longer given here at the school, we have two nurses which see to the overall health of the student body. Go to the nurse if you feel sick, need some medication required by your doctor, etc. and you'll find a sympathetic ear and someone who knows what to do in an emergency. Bandaid, anyone?

Everyone needs help sometime . . .

The Special Education Department at Middleboro High School serves a number of students. There are four distinct special education groups: a Learning Disabilities program, a Developmentally Delayed program, a program for the behaviorally challenged, and a "Language Experiential" program.

The Learning Development program with Mrs. Judy Sullivan is designed to assist students to attain the life skills requisite to success in work, home, recreation and community life beyond high school. The core philosophy of the program believes that all students can learn and they can learn that which we think is important for them to learn given time and appropriate resources. Students in this program form the "cooking crew" and also work on a regular basis at the Soule Farm Homestead.

The learning disabilities program with Mrs. Korins is designed to help students in English and Math.

The Language Experiential program with Mrs. Bizinkauskas is designed to serve students with average or above average cognitive abilities and who require language arts interventions as well as the typical learners, to teach specific strategies that allow these students the opportunity to study different approaches to learning in the areas of knowledge acquisition, storage information and expression of knowledge.

These programs and others, such as the newly instituted Alpha program are designed to meet the educational challenges of the students. The faculty and staff are enthusiastic and very committed to meeting the needs of ALL the students at Middleboro High School (thanks to Ms. Bisinkauskas)

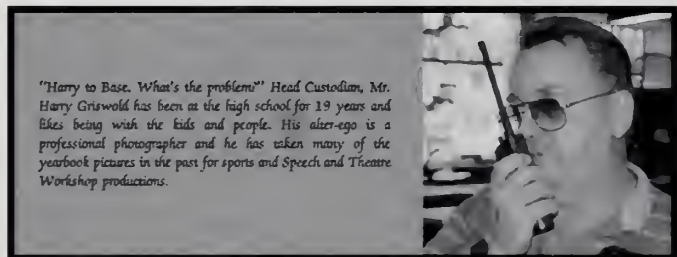

SPECIAL NEEDS IS THERE TO HELP

COOKING AND CLEANING

No, We're not talking about your Mother

In the art room there's a sign, "Clean Up Your mother is NOT enrolled in this class"; and it's true, we've left her at home or at work. So who does take care of us? It's the Kitchen Kanaries and the Custodians. Recently the cafeteria began offering us breakfast in addition to the snack bar and lunch. Sure, school lunches have a reputation for being pretty bad but that's not really the case here at MHS. The ladies do a good job of giving us what we want within the U.S. dietary guidelines they must follow. You can get sandwiches, a hot entree, bottled water or hot pretzels at a great price. Not only do they cook for us but they do the dishes too! These ladies are the first to be part of our school spirit, taking part in Spirit Week activities, dressing up for holidays and even drawing murals on their blackboard. Pictured here at the right is Mrs. Ames at her lunch register where she takes your money with a smile; and a kind word even if you forgot your lunch money. Surprise her and say "hi, have a good day!"

The Kitchen Kanaries — Lisa Geoffrian, Joanne Sylvia, Pam Smith, Karen Stanley, Mary Standish, Chris Guyette, Maureen Crenney, Chery Snow. Missing is Mrs. Betty Ames.

"Harry to Base. What's the problem?" Head Custodian, Mr. Harry Griswold has been at the high school for 19 years and likes being with the kids and people. His alter-ego is a professional photographer and he has taken many of the yearbook pictures in the past for Sports and Speech and Theatre Workshop productions.

Do you like cleaning your room? Most of us can get away with a messy room, but our custodians can't get away with a messy school. Starting at 6:30 am, when they open the building, shut off the alarms and put up the flag until 11 pm, there is a dedicated crew that takes care of our building and classrooms. They do more than dust, clean the floors, move furniture and empty the trash. It's a lot of building and there's maintenance to do, too. Mr. Griswold told us "Things haven't changed a lot although when the school first opened the main problem was a lot more graffiti and now the students are a lot more messy and don't clean up after themselves." The custodians are there for special events, too. Ask them about cleaning up after the first, last and only Jello and Spaghetti Wrestling Events. There's a reason why they were the first, last and only. So how about picking up that paper you dropped on the floor or throwing that soda can in the trash?

Cafeteria Assistants, Tiffany Dudley, Jim Costa, Tyrone Fletcher, Mike Jolly, and Chris Fletcher, do a lot of the "dirty work" and are really appreciated by the kitchen staff.

"Our Own Special Cleaning Crew" is Mr. Harry Griswold, head custodian; Mrs. Gwen Dion, matron; Mr. Dave Perry, Mr. Mario DeRuzza and Mr. Ron Tanguay.

Express yourself....

... AS A PARTICIPANT

It's been a long day and your mind is worn to a frazzle with all the thinking and problem solving. "No more," you silently scream. How to relax? For sure, you don't want to hang out downtown at Xtra-Mart or go home and do homework or, heaven forbid, do chores. So what to do? At MHS, there are more than 84 clubs, organizations, activities and athletic teams that students can join.

If you are interested in working with your class, there are class and student councils to join. If you want to use your knowledge, there is the Academic Bowl and the International Relations Club.

Interested in music? Try joining a choir, band or orchestra. If drama holds an interest for you and you can't fit drama class into your schedule, Speech and Theater Workshop is worth looking into. In this club, the students perform in a play and an end-of-the-year production open to everyone (no auditions) called "That's Entertainment."

Clubs such as Silver "M" and National Honor Society are part of the long standing traditions of the school. Yet, if there is an interest, students are encouraged to form new clubs, such as the Diversity Coalition, which was organized last year to make the student body more aware of different cultures and different lifestyles. Some organizations are part of the student's school day, such as DECA, where a student learns business management by working in the school store or working on projects for state and national competitions.

Therefore, even though there is an emphasis on doing well in your academic studies, you are also encouraged to join clubs and after school activities. These programs help the students become more involved with the school and interact with other students and the community. They also help a student to become more well-rounded, which will help them in the future.

Yearbook! Why would anyone want the hassle, the aggravation, the stress? Who knows for sure, but luckily for the students at MHS, every year a band of hardy souls gather together and manage to produce, for posterity, that publication known as the Timaron, the yearbook of Middleborough High School. They even manage to have fun doing it.

Although anyone can be on the staff, it's most often the Juniors and Seniors who have claimed the yearbook for their own special project. Planning starts in April after the preceding book has been put to bed. That's publishing jargon for sent to the printers/publisher. First, you decide theme and format, type, style and color. You create your dream book and then price it out with your publishing representative. (That's Conrad). You pick and choose; and come out with a production price. Then begins the planning on how will you raise the money? The yearbook is self-supporting and doesn't get money from the school; so you put together a sales campaign and go out into the community and sell ads, you ask senior parents to write messages, you sell pom-poms for Spirit Week and of course, you sell the book.

You then lay out the book into sections and decide how many pages for this and that. You assign the sections and begin writing copy, doing layouts, choosing pictures and finally you send the first section into the publisher. What a time of celebration. The real thrill comes when you see those first proofs — there's the page you designed, the copy you wrote, the names you misspelled. After months and months of more of the same, complaints about what you've done and staff who didn't make it through, it's here! Finished and bound and somehow all those hours of work, those moments of tension and the aggravation were really worth it. You helped create a lasting memory, a moment of time that you can pick up and look at again and again. And when it's time for that class reunion, you can look at the book and remember. That's the way it was in '95.

ARCHES ON

Seniors, Kim Frates, Alicia Cameron, Catherine Kamp, Stacey Faul, Heather Lane, Kaisa Holloway and Erin Paschke put in many hours on the Senior Section making sure it is as good as it can be.

QUIPS AND QUOTES heard around the yearbook room

- "Does anyone know who this is?"
- "Conrad's coming"
- "It's MY turn on the computer."
- "Will SOMEONE please type this?"
- "These pages need to be proofed AGAIN!"
- "FOOD! Let's do McDonald's" Or subs, Or pizza!
- "Speaking of McDonald's. Where ARE your keys, Mrs. H?"
- "What can I write? I HATE copy."
- "How do you spell . . .?"

A typical yearbook scene in room 221. More than 6000 hours were spent after school, at home, in the evenings, during studies and on weekends; learning how to crop, do layouts, write copy, typing and proofing to produce this year's TIMARON.

NATIONAL MERIT COMMENDATION

Each year in October, the juniors who take the PSAT become eligible for academic and scholarship recognition on the basis of their scores. These are national awards and the finalists receive full tuition scholarships to the colleges of their choice. Semi-finalists and those who receive commendations often receive scholarships and preferential admittance to some colleges. Missy Duphily is the only recipient in this year's graduating class. She received a commendation from the program last spring. Congratulations, Missy!

SADD

"Students Against Drunk Driving"

Started in the spring of 1993 as an outgrowth of Peer Leadership, members of SADD are committed to prompting awareness of the dangers of alcohol abuse in the student body. Their primary project is SADD Week in May, just before the Junior and Senior Proms when they do different activities each day. It is a national statistic that numbers of teenagers are victims of being with drunk drivers, or are the drunk driver themselves. SADD is open to all students of the school.

KEY CLUB

Key Club is a national service organization that blends service with leadership training. It was started in May of 1925 in Sacramento California by a local Kiwanis Club for an all boys school. It was initiated here at MHS on May 3, 1985. They continue to uphold the tradition of service to the community by providing an Awareness program for schools in violence awareness and helping with the Salvation Army collection, Christmas Palace. Their fund raising efforts include Trick or Treating for cans, craft show concessions, a summer yard sale, and the sale of Humani-tees.

STUDENT COUNCIL

A chance to serve your school and develop your leadership skills is what Student Council is all about. From the first day of school until the last, these individuals work tirelessly to make MHS a better place. Most often, you are aware of the student activities they sponsor, but they are the ones who are the governing body of the school for students and they have input in the handbook and school policy. Several years ago they were responsible for the change in the dress code which allowed students to wear shorts.

The Student Council is separate from class council, but most members are found on both. The council consists of the four officers, who are elected by the student body the previous spring, all class officers and 6 members at large from each class. Except for the freshmen, all elections are in the spring. If someone wishes to belong to the student council, but has not been elected, they may become an honorary member by attending three consecutive meetings and working on a committee. There are always several honorary members each year. At the helm of this group is advisor, Mr. Scott Nelson.

Members also attend several local and state conventions during the year such as SEMASC. This year our student council was the host for this one day convention held in September with about 750 students from Southeastern Massachusetts attending. They went to workshops, ate Kentucky Fried Chicken and listened to keynote speaker, US Attorney Ralph Boyd, and candidates for State Representative, incumbent Robert Kraus and challenger, Tom O'Brien.

You can rely on it, your student council is working for you and your school.

A personal training program designed to promote student to student interaction, in problem solving and conflict resolution, Peer Leadership began as an after school organization but now meets once a week for credit. With the guidance of advisor/teacher, Mrs. Tanya Sullivan, the students are trained in listening and responding skills, problem solving, decision making, and other aspects of leadership. Peer leaders who successfully master these skills work individually with the student body as an outreach to the whole school.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS

In May, Jimmy Costa, Chris Fletcher, Ron Brown, Andrew Dernier, Mike Jolly, Tyrone Fletcher, and Tiffany Dudley went to the area Special Olympic games. After they participate in these games, they can go on to the state competition in June. Last year, Chris had the farthest long jump in the state competition.

THE COOKING CREW

Have you had an Otis Spunkmeyer Chocolate Chip Cookie from the DECA store or tasted one of the meals that this group of students has prepared? Most likely, if you are a student you've eaten the cookies and if you're a member of the staff or faculty, you've purchased one of their take-out-on-Thursday meals. Students are part of an internship program with Continental Cable and/or Ocean Spray. Members of this class/activity are the ones who produce the, now annual, Video Yearbook featuring the current senior class and their activities during their last year of high school. They also tape the various productions and events in the school. All in all, they are kept really busy as is their EO, Mr. Hilsabeck.

DIVERSITY COALITION

The Coalition was founded in late spring 1994 by a group of concerned students under the leadership of Mrs. Tummino. Their goal is to make the student body more aware and tolerant of the different cultures and the different lifestyles in our changing world. They participated in the AIDS Walk in Boston and attended the Day Of Difference Conference and now meet under the direction of Mrs. Tanya Sullivan. All students are welcome to join at any time.

LEBARON

Lebaron is a program set up for Senior and Junior girls to learn cosmetology and hairdressing. The girls leave everyday at 11:30 a.m. for New Bedford, they put in a required number of hours to complete the course. When these girls graduate they will receive a hairdressing certificate along with their High School diploma.

DECA

DECA is a nation-wide organization that has made its way into Middleborough High School. This organization is a class where its students get hands-on experience. The students are supervised by Mr. White, in the store where they learn about retail merchandise, marketing, etc. The students enter competitions where they get to use this new knowledge of these areas. Many students come back with awards and even scholarships.

English Department faculty member, Mr. Doug Haskell and senior, Jessica Connors look over copy for an upcoming issue of the Sachem Pride. New this year, the Pride is sent four times a year to the homes of all MHS students as a means of bettering communication between the school and the home. The student publication, the Sentry, features student perspectives on issues that concern the student body as well as student art and writing.

ENVIROTHON.

4 years ago in 1990, Mrs. Pauline Taylor of the Science Department organized a group of students who were interested in conservation, recycling and saving the environment. Students participate in a state wide competition in the spring on such topics as aquatics, soil, air and forestry. There is a national competition as well. The Envirothon is the child of a group called the "Environmental Players" who participated in an edition of That's Entertainment and did a show at the HBBurkland School. This year's veteran members are Alison Reardon, Cathey Nunes, Jessica Murphy and Jennifer Bealer. The team will be getting organized in the late winter.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

STUDENT GOVERNMENT DAY

Jim Piquette and Derek Adamic were selected by members of the senior class as this year's Student Government Day Representatives. Accompanied by Mr. Keich, they travelled to Durfee High School to learn about the state government. In the Spring, they will attend two more meetings in Boston and act as real government officials.

STUDENT ADVISORY COUNCIL

SAC is a state-wide organization whose membership consists of two students from each high school who have been elected by their student body. This year, Rebecca Holmes and Jess Connors were elected to represent MHS. Throughout the year, they traveled to different schools around the state to hear and give their opinions about educational matters that are of concern to the state legislature. Each session has a different theme.

SCHOOL COUNCIL

Under the new Education Reform Act, each high school in the state is required to have a school council which consists of teachers, administrators, parents and community members as well as two students from the student body at large. Students file nomination papers and are elected as School Council members by the student body. There, two students work closely with the parents as well as the administration to formulate school policies. This year, Jess Murphy and Jim Piquette were elected by the student body to represent the student's interest.

SEAWAGNET

At the Southeast Massachusetts Geography Network annual conference held this fall at Bridgewater State College, MHS students, Jess Martins, Cathy Bell, Carol Clark, and Brad Smith all came out with awards for their geography projects. Cathy Bell and Carol Clark won first place in the pairs category while Brad Smith won a certificate of participation.

Mary Catherine Savard tapped her way to the title of Middleboro's Junior Miss for 1995 with her rendition of "Sam, You made the pants too long." A Coyle and Cassidy senior, Mary Catherine received awards in the categories of fitness, creative and performing arts and presence of composure and will go onto the state competition in Franklin.

MHS own Julie Keane was named first runner up and received awards in fitness, performing arts, scholastics and presence of composure categories. All awards are given as scholarships from local businesses and groups. Other MHS seniors, Rebecca Holmes, Stacey Faul and Olive Stapelton received other scholarship awards.

ACADEMIC BOWL

How would you describe a trisectahedron? Give the name of the hurricane that devastated North Carolina in 1989. What is the largest city in Bosnia-Herzegovina? These are some of the questions asked at Academic bowl matches. Here's another question, what is the Academic Bowl?

The Academic Bowl, headed by Mrs. Pauline Taylor, is a team that allows students at MHS to compete with students from surrounding schools in Jeopardy-style matches. This year the top 15 students from the 10th, 11th, and 12th grades were asked to join, and the invitation was extended to any other interested students.

In the actual game, teams of four are pitted against each other, a question is asked.

Academic Bowl questions deal with math, science, history and current events, the fine arts, sports, and many other academic and cultural topics.

By the way, a trisectahedron is a 24-sided figure, the hurricane was Hugo, and the largest city in Bosnia-Herzegovina is Serajevo.

SILVER "M"

Silver M is Middleboro High's own way of recognizing and honoring those students who have shown a great deal of leadership in the school and community. Each year, 3 sophomores, juniors and 9 seniors are invited to join Silver M. These students are nominated by faculty, and then elected by the current members of Silver M.

Silver M holds two induction ceremonies, where new members are "tapped." Another induction, of senior only, takes place at Senior Last Assembly. Members and their advisor, Mrs. Donna Oliver, traditionally put the flag out that line Main St. and Center St. on Veterans' Day and Memorial Day.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

The National Honor Society is a national organization that has chapters in schools across the U.S. Our local chapter is the Anchrier chapter, named for a former mathematics teacher. NHS honors students who not only have achieved high grades, but also have shown qualities of leadership, community service, and outstanding character. A faculty committee reviews the applications of eligible students, there is no limit on the number of students who are inducted.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' STATE

Any boy or girl who is interested in Government or would like to know about Government, who is a US citizen and who has respect for the Flag, for God and Country is eligible to take out nomination papers. Elected by the student body, 2 boys and 1 girl are then elected and sent to week long conferences in June of their Junior year. Sponsored by the local American Legion Post, the boys go to Bentley College and the girls to Mt. Holyoke College, where they join students from throughout the Commonwealth spending an intensive week understanding how the American political system works. They also learn about themselves and their ideas and through their experiences about the meaning of Tolerance, Unity, Justice and Loyalty and what Freedom and Democracy mean in today's world. Representing the Class of 1995 was Andy Barnicoat and Derek Adamec for Boys' State and Julie Young for Girls' State.

HOBY

This year Emily Stevens was selected to attend the Hugh O'Bryan Youth organization seminar. Sponsored by the local Cabot Club, Emily submitted an application and essay outlining her feelings about government. In June she will attend special meetings in Boston with other students from all over the state for a week.

In association with the HOBY program, 4 sophomores were selected to attend a day long conference (Community Leadership Education Workshop) sponsored by the Cabot Club of Middleborough, where they learned about community leadership and involvement. This year's contingents were Christianna Norvish, Nick Langenfeld, Craig Besegai and Christina Hannon.

SACHEMAIRES

This is an all girls chorus open to any student in the high school who likes to sing. They meet 3 times a week and make appearances in the Christmas and Spring Concerts. Many of the members also sing with the Sachem Singers, the A Cappella Choir or play in the band or orchestra. Diana Ayube and Olive Stapleton were admitted to the Southeast District Music Festival and Diana was also recommended to the All-State Music Festival.

A CAPPELLA CHOIR

A Cappella Choir is the most elite singing group at MHS. By invitation and audition, this select group of young men and women, headed by Mr. Kenneth Clinton, sing an array of musical selections from the classical to the contemporary. They provide special music for National Honor Society Inductions, Senior Last Assembly and Graduation. This year, for the first time, they are going on tour to Montreal, Canada, during Spring vacation. Members, Diana Ayube, Greg Bell, Meagan Curtis, Ben Pickering, Olive Stapleton and Katy Ward were admitted to the Southeast District Music Festival and Diana, Greg, Ben and Katy were recommended to the All-State Music Festival.

This year's choir consists of (t-b:l-r): P. Abren, V. Mack, D. Purpura, T. Hunnewell, J. Lapana, A. Barnicoat, J. Maynard, B. Brodeur, N. Thomas, G. Bell, R. Wilbur, T. Lavin, D. Ayube, O. Sinnot, P. Coyle, R. Eastman, K. Foley, A. Dixon, M. Hall, W. Cleverly, H. Lane, K. Leary, M. Willis, J. Faria, S. Lemmo, K. Ward, B. Pickering, D. Boyle.

THE SACHEM SINGERS

The Sachem Singers consist of young men and women who like to sing and perform. Meeting 3 times a week, they are a complement to the Sachemaires, the all-girls' chorus. No audition here and you can earn credits too. This year's members include those pictured here: (t-b:l-r) L. Silva, M. Hall, E. Brochu, B. Smith, B. Lauzon, T. Gamache, C. Smith, C. Rodriguez, H. Tanguay, J. Chiroka S., J. Manning, K. Perkins, A. Barnicoat, J. Butler, D. Reynolds, L. Sullivan, L. Dehay, K. Somers, M. Sullivan, B. Crutchfield, C. Tanguay, Mrs. Iampietro, L. Gabourel, R. Snow, L. Gummow, B. Schlack, G. Lemmo, H. Pratt.

JAZZ BAND

For a more relaxed and swinging group, join the jazz band under the direction of Mr. Gross. These musicians practice in the evenings and appear at the various concerts. All that's needed here is an instrument and a sense of rhythm. This year's cool cats are (t-b;l-r): C. Snow, M. Cook, D. Adamiec, C. Kelly, M. Totman, A. Reardon, R. Dusek, M. Sullivan, A. Barnicoat, J. Versluis, G. Bell, C. Hilton, J. Faria, V. Mack and K. Hartford. Mr. Gross is camera shy.

ORCHESTRA

For a more cultured approach to music, complete with strings, join the MHS Orchestra. This small, but committed group, can be seen and heard at the Spring and Christmas Concerts. Sometimes known as "high-brow" music, these talented musicians are (t-b;l-r) V. Mack, S. Northrup, B. Brodeur, J. Faria, K. Leary, K. Hartford, K. Leary, G. Bell, L. Gaudet, L. Thornton, S. Bowker, M. Hall and A. Barnicoat. Representing the String Orchestra at the Southeastern District Music Festival was Valerie Mack.

MARCHING & SYMPHONIC BAND

What would a football game or a parade be without a band? Certainly something important would be missing; and if your classroom is located in the rear of the school, you hear the band practicing every day, 5th period, during the first term. Not only must you be able to play the music, but you must be able to do some fancy footwork and also be able to move into formations while you are playing. Not an easy feat. The MHS band prepares a halftime for all the Sachem home games and marches in all the local parades such as Memorial Day, Veterans Day and the annual Middleboro Christmas Parade. After the Thanksgiving Game and the Christmas Parade the band doffs their marching uniforms and becomes the Symphonic Band. This year's members pose for a picture on the bleachers in the gym. Are You Really Santa Claus?

If some old guy told you that he was Santa Claus, would you believe him? Chances are you'd probably think he was a little crazy, right? That's exactly what Doris Walker thought when her new Macy's Santa claimed that he was the actual St. Nick. Who's Doris Walker? Come on, you remember the classic Christmas movie "A Miracle On 34th Street." Or, as the music department likes to call it, "Here's Love." This holiday tale is about an old man who says he's Santa Claus, a skeptical little girl and her "all work and no play" mother, and a fledgling lawyer who brings them all together.

A lot of familiar faces could be seen in the cast this year, including Greg Bell as Fred Gaily and Megan Curtis as Doris Walker. Some new faces popped up as well, Angela Flemming as Susan Walker, and T. J. Lavin as Kris Kringle. With the help of Mrs. Desrosiers, boy! did he look the part! Like all good stories, "Here's Love" had a happy ending. Doris and Fred found each other, Susan got her dream house, and Kris Kringle touched everyone's heart. Yes, there really is a Santa Claus.

"LEND ME A TENOR"

What do a broken glass, a broken table, and a roaring audience have in common? For anyone who saw STW's latest production, the answer is obvious — Ken Ludwig's "Lend Me A Tenor."

The plot is simple — simply confusing! Tito Merelli (Alfonso Cacciatore) is a famous opera singer who has been hired by the Cleveland Grand Opera to sing in their production of "Othello." When Tito's wife, Maria (Tara Hunnewell), walks out on him, he overdoses on Phenobarbital. That's when the fun begins! Max (Greg Bell), an assistant to the manager of the Opera Company (Richard Wilbur), dresses up as Tito and goes on to perform — but Tito wakes up, goes to sing, and is accused of impersonating himself! To make things even more confusing, they are continually being mistaken for each other by Maggie (Heatherly Lane), Max's sweetheart, Julia Leverett (Catherine Kamp) the chair of the Opera Guild, and Diana (Laurie Holmes), the star soprano, who are all enamored with the talented Italian. Oh, and one more thing, there's a singing bellhop (Andy Barnicoat), who always seems to be underfoot when he's least needed.

In an unusual curtain call, the cast literally runs through the entire play in about 85 seconds! Talk about confusing!

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION!

What better way to express yourself than through Speech and Theater Workshop?

During this year's assembly for STW, the freshman and sophomore section was almost filled and, as usual, there was a good senior-junior turn out. The buzz was that anyone who is anyone is planning on doing "That's Entertainment." All of the officers spoke of getting involved and having fun. The officers, Greg Bell, Catherine Kamp, Heather Lane, Nicole Semas, Kaisa Holloway and Julie Keane seemed very excited about this year. Mrs. Osborne seemed most excited about doing a comedy, Lend Me A Tenor, and taking it to the Boston Globe Drama Festival this year. At the end of the meeting, members were invited to sign up for the New England Theater Conference, and the new modern dance troupe, started by Laurie Holmes this year.

We sent 55 people to the New England Theater Conference in November. The students attended workshops on makeup, mime, script writing, and vocal techniques. This year's Speech and Theater Workshop gives the Middleboro High School students a chance to express themselves in a different way through comedy.

When asked if they knew what Speech and Theatre Workshop was, 48 people said yes, they did. Luckily, only 2 people were unsure of what STW is. Why is Speech and Theatre an important part of high school? This is a sampling of what you thought:

"So that people can discover if they have any good acting abilities, to become an actor."
— Christine Adams; junior.

"For experience for people who want a career in acting." — Vail Sasville; sophomore

"Because it rules." — Tim Murphy; freshman.

"It allows students to express their feelings and to fit in." — Bonnie Crutchfield; junior.

"You can meet new people." — Kelly Bailey; sophomore.

"If thou shan't express thyself, one is not to live." — Pam Silva; freshman.

SENIORS PULVERIZE JUNIORS

When you think of a powder puff game, do you think of a nice, well mannered group of girls playing football, and a group of guys pretending they know how to cheer? Well, this year, the juniors and seniors showed us the true meaning of "Powder Puff." The juniors put up a good fight but the seniors were able to utilize last year's experience to win 18-6. Kristin Merrill and Shauna Lemmo were key players for the senior offense, while Andrea Dixon ran for the only junior TD. Many faculty members were also involved with this tradition. The chain gang this year consisted of Mr. Brooks and Mr. McCarthy. Officials Mr. Scott Nelson and Mr. Dennis Green worked very hard to keep the peace between the two teams.

The seniors were inspired by the All-Male Senior Powder Puff Cheerleaders. The senior cheerleaders got their squad and the stand fired up by performing their rendition of "A Boom Chica Boom" and their unique five-man caterpillar dance. The junior male cheerleaders also had their chance in the spotlight. After the competition was over, the seniors and juniors posed for pictures and then they each went to celebrate. At right, official Mr. Green signals a touchdown for the seniors.

Express yourself....

... as a member of a team

It's the wind in your face when you're striving for a record on the track, or the sigh of relief when your team wins a close game or maybe it's the grimace that you make when you're struggling against an opponent in a wrestling match.

Call it what you want, but expression is seen and heard during every part of the game. Students express themselves by the sport they chose and by the spirit of competition at a meet, match or game. The link between the athletes and the student body at large is called the "Sachem Spirit."

You see evidence of this "spirit" as soon as you walk into the main lobby and see the banners that line the walls. Created for the annual Spirit Week in October, you will see the efforts not only of the teams but also the efforts of the various groups and organizations in the school. You will see the spirit on a game day when teams wear their game shirts, the cheerleaders wear their sweaters and the seniors are dressed in their class shirts. You need not be an athlete to have "Sachem Spirit." Many students also show their spirit by attending the games, playing in the band or being a team manager or majorette.

There have been many additions to this year's athletic department. The Town received a grant from the Ocean Spray Corporation's program called WAVE for $10,000 for women's sports. The grant went to programs in field hockey, basketball, softball, coed winter track and includes guest speakers. With these additions and no users fees this year, one would think that more students would be interested in sports. Well, this wasn't the case for the girl's soccer team. They were constantly looking for players. But with the few players the spirit was still there in their effort and determination. Cross Country fell victim to a depleted squad and had to cancel the remainder of their season.

We may not always have that score, the teams that win every game, division or playoff but we do have the "Spirit." So put on your swim cap, lace those track shoes and grab those hockey sticks: it's time for a recap of the year on the pages that follow ...

Sachem Football Does it All!

Reigning ACL Coach of the Year, Dennis Pierozzi, has tried to continue his winning ways with the Middleboro Sachem football team. Last year the team record was 8 and 2. This year's record was 5 and 5. Other coaching staff includes Mr. Scott Nelson, Jim McGuire, Darren Morano and Anthony Andrade. Rusty Tetrault and Mike Howard are also assisting. Tri-Captains Derek Adamiec, Jamie Bagnell and Mike Dillon bring the Sachems strong leadership. Not only do the captains motivate the team, but they are very important players in both offense and defense. Junior Mike Cotton and sophomore Joey Hufault add speed to the Sachems already strong offense. Pat Callahan, a sophomore, is the new quarterback and brought the team some new plays. Mike Enos, also a sophomore, is an important member of the team as a quarterback, offensive and defensive player. The Sachems also have a good defense team. Seniors Eric Turcotte, Scott Maul, and Adam Carbone bring in the strength and experience for the defense. Juniors Alfie Cacciatore, Alex Sepulveda, Ryan Beliveau and Chris Roupa along with sophomore Dustin Soule are some defensive player who have gained experience from this year and we will hopefully see them next year.

The week of their first win was at the end of Middleboro High's Spirit Week, when the Sachems won their first game against Plymouth-North. This win gave the Sachems self-esteem and confidence. After this win, the Sachems came back to win four more games, evening their record to 5 and 5. The Middleboro Sachems ended their season by winning the traditional Thanksgiving Day game against the Carver Crusaders, 24 to 8. The defense played very well, holding the Crusaders to one touchdown, while the Sachem offense came in to score four. At the end of the game, awards were given out to the three most valuable players: seniors, Mike Dillon and Eric Turcotte and junior, Mike Cotton.

Do you know what a double illusion is, or what about a three spin? Well, if you don't, these are twirling moves that the Midleboro majorettes work throughout the year to perfect. Led by captain, Michelle Whitman, these majorettes twirl for fun and for awards. This year, Jenn Rufo won the title of Miss Majorette with Melissa Howard coming in a close second in the 13-15 group. Michelle Whitman came in second in the 16 and up group.

MAJORETTE OR TWIRLER?

Defeat Defeat VICTORY!!!

Field Hockey breaks it's losing streak.

The varsity field hockey team, led by captains Kelly Tarr and Jen Hammarburg, had an amazing start to their season with a 2-0 victory over Plymouth North High School. The team has had a multi-year winless streak and this win gave them the confidence they needed to have a great season. They produced some great goals which earned them a few close games against top ranked teams in the league. One such game against Sandwich High School, the number three ranked team, surprised everyone when Kelly Gillis scored a goal during the first few minutes of the game. A great team effort kept the score down to only a two goal loss.

The junior varsity team also had a great season, with their three captains: Lee Landry, Selena Strader and Niccole Bourne. Due to the large turnout of players, a freshman team was added. The freshmen did surprisingly well for a group of players who, for the most part, had never picked up a field hockey stick before. Considering the fact that there was a large amount of beginners, the junior varsity and freshman teams, which played together often, accumulated some wins and a few ties against some tough teams. The veteran players have been improving their skills and the beginners followed in their footsteps. The players worked well as a team and the coaches, Pat Freitas and Donna Lieb, are pleased with the performance of everyone.

STRIVING FOR THE TOP, MEETING THE GOAL, FACING THE COMPETITION.

Girls soccer does it all

A number of factors limited the success of this year's girls soccer team. The team had few players. The team had lost eight stars from the previous year. "There were a lot of new players this year," said coach Costa. Because of the lack of players the team was unable to stay competitive with teams that had twice as many players. Also injuries were another contributing factor.

The 6-11-1 Sachems can boast two league all-stars, senior Katie Ward was a four year starter and three year Atlantic Coast All-Star. "She is a phenomenal player," said coach Carlos Costa. Over her four years she has scored nine or ten goals from defense. Senior goal keeper Kristen Merrill, also an all-star, holds every goal keeping record at Middleboro High. She is the division II all-star goalie representing the Atlantic Coast League. Senior center forward Leah Gillis, a team captain had three goals and two assists for the year. Senior Hillary Maxwell has the teams utility player, "She can play all the different positions. She always gave it her all," Costa said.

Kristen Merrill and Katie Ward were this years M.V.P.'s. Kristen Merrill, who had an unbelievable year, is one of the top three goalies in the Atlantic Coast League. Katie Ward is a three time all-star, "She has a great attitude and is very quick" said coach Costa.

Prospects look bright for the Sachems as they will have many returning players, among them the teams leading scorer, sophomore Erin McKenna, had twelve goals and one assist for the Sachems and holds the record for the most goals scored by a sophomore in Middleboro. The entire defense line of Sarah Gillis, Katie McIssac, Krissy Hannon, and Erin Sullivan are returning for the Sachems along with utility player Christiana Norvish.

In a tough league which placed six out of ten teams into the state tourney. The team is looking to make its mark again next season.

HEART AND SOUL

Boy's Soccer Team Keeps on Kickin'

Although this year wasn't the most successful for the Boys Varsity Soccer Team, it was the most memorable. Led by captains Jesse Nye and T. J. Lavin, the team played with heart and soul in what is probably the toughest league in the state.

In their first and last MHS soccer season, rookie seniors Manzi Kanobana, Jake Versluis, Olivier Vella, and Jason Richards brought new excitement to the field, while veteran players Jesse Nye, T. J. Lavin, Greg Bell and Andy Barnicoat brought skill and intensity into the game. Underclassmen Mike Pelletier, Keith Nye, D. J. Gallant, Peter Abren, Keith "Hector" Horseman, Kevin and Dan Boyle, and Matt Farris often dominated the field, and promise a great season next year.

New varsity coach, Rich Stareiak, was optimistic throughout the season. "The boys have been working hard. It's very easy to get down, but they haven't quit yet," he told The Middleboro Gazette in late September.

Even with a disappointing season, Sachem soccer fans hung tough, cheering on the team, helping out where they could, and trying to keep the team's spirit up. The boys should be an inspiration to us all, never giving up even in the toughest of times.

One of the most frustrating times during a game is being on the bench, seeing everything, but being able to change nothing. Here, Matt Farris, D. J. Gallant, Mike Colp, Dan Trott, and Jake Versluis watch a game against Marshfield with obvious anxiety.

SUPERFAN!!!

Every team has a "superfan" and Mike Colp wins hands down as the Boy's Soccer team's. Although unable to play this season, Mike was at every game cheering them on and helping out on the sidelines.

Olivier Vella, our French exchange student: "I found a lot of friends with the soccer team. American people practice a lot of sports. It's a good thing. (In France) if you want to practice a sport, you have to join a private club. You can't practice at school!"

Senior TJ Lavin has no regrets about being "stuck" in the goal. Are there ever times he wishes he was out on the field? "No, I like the pressure. There's just something about being in the goal. It's hard to explain, you have to be in there to understand it."

"DIFFERENT STROKES"

Under the waves with the girls swim team.

Hard work and practice is what made this team. The members practiced every day at the Burkland pool; getting ready for their upcoming meets. Most members say that the meets have been close, and whether they won or not, the spirit is still there. Julie and Nikki got the team really motivated, and the members really appreciated that.

There were many records beaten by this team. Co-Captain Julie Keane made the school's top ten list in four events, the 200 backstroke, the 200 free style, the 100 free style, and the 100 individual medley. Another senior, Jamie Matthews, has had a great first year on the team. "She learned and steadily improved through hard work"

Coach Clark said in an Middleboro Gazette article. Senior Kristen Romer had a tough year, although she had some ear infections, she was still able to help with paper work. Co-captain Nicole Semas was also commended by Coach Clark "she always swims with a lot of emotion and she really cares about her teammates." Personal bests were not only achieved by Seniors. Many of the underclassmen set goals. "It was a good season ... everyone improved and became better" said co-captain Nicole.

The girls swim team has made our high school proud. They all know it's not always wet-her you win or lose, but how you swam the race. Good luck next year!

Just recently, Olympic champion swimmer Greg Louganis announced that he has AIDS. We asked a few swimmers how they felt about this news:

Chris Hilton: "I still think he's cool."

Jason Cheromcha: "I'm disappointed that we're losing such a good swimmer, and I'm very shocked."

Chris Kelly: "I was very surprised because he's such an idol, and I didn't think it could happen to someone like that."

Sophomore Mike "Sully" Sullivan was persuaded to join the team this year. He first tried diving but ended up in the pool and swimming in the breast stroke and other events. When asked, why swimming? He said "I wanted to get in shape for the basketball and baseball seasons and swimming is a great way to condition myself both mentally and physically. The practices are what I don't like because they're so long and strenuous. It really takes a lot out of you. But I like going to the meets because everyone is really supportive of each other and we all join together as one big family. It was cool to get second place in the Pilgrim Conferences, but I'm glad the season is finally over."

SWIMMERS! TAKE YOUR MARK . . .

for a record breaking season!

Imagine your pride in breaking a school record . . . and then doing it three more times! That's what the 200 meter relay team of Chris Kelly, Jason Cheromcha, Joey Matthews and Ruston Eastman did this year. [136:46] Not only did they break that record, but at the state championships, this same team broke the 1981 record for the 400 medley relay with a new time of 3:33:83. Other record breakers were sophomore Joey Matthews who set a new record for the 100 meter back stroke [59:31] and Brandon Floyd broke into the top 10 list in the one meter diving event with a score of 142.52.

The team put in a lot of hard work, and although the season was a long and tiring one, the team's efforts were rewarded. Despite the fact that the team had only 10 members and competed against teams with 20 to 30 swimmers, the mighty Sachem Swimmers placed 2nd in the Pilgrim Conference and 2nd in the Pilgrim Conference Championship meet as well. Their overall record was 9-2, losing only to Sandwich and New Bedford due to numbers on the team, and thus making them the most successful MHS athletic team so far this year.

Seniors Chris Kelly, Chris Hilton and Jason Cheromcha lived up to their roles as captains and the team gives credit to those great Pasta suppers at the Kelly's for keeping their spirits alive. Kelly became the 3rd fastest swimmer for the 200 freestyle in MHS history followed by Cheromcha in 6th for the individual medley. Ruston Eastman became the 4th fastest MHS swimmer in the 500 yd. freestyle. The rest of the team contributed to the outstanding success of the season. When you have a small team, every member feels the need to do their best more than ever. Freshman Brian Jolly qualified for 2 sectional events as did junior, Ruston Eastman. Sophomores Scott Burrill, Mike "Sully" Sullivan and Garrett Holloway consistently bettered their own personal times in the swimming and diving events. Coach Everett Clark had nothing but praise for the team and is looking for more swimmers to join this championship team next year.

YOUTH, INJURY AND OPTIMISM. The Ladies Behind the Basketball.

"It's not whether you win or lose but how you play the game!" It's an old saying but a true one for this year's Lady Sachems. The end of the season saw the girls team with a 3-17 record. Quite a difference from last year when the Lady Sachems earned a berth in the State Championships. The young team with 10 underclassmen [6 of whom were sophomores] were further handicapped when senior captain, Kristen Merrill, was sidelined for the final 8 games with a sprained ankle. Nonetheless, Kristen's contributions to the team earned her a place on the Atlantic Coast League All Star team.

Sophomore Erin Houlihan was brought up from JV and took over as center and did a credible job for the team, gaining confidence with every game. Everyone contributed their best efforts. Crissy Hannon, Patty Coyle, Jessica Dusek, Erin McKenna and Julie Prisco could be counted upon for baskets and foul shots. "Now if we can just learn to shoot better and each girl can score one or two more points, then we'd have a whole new ball game" said Coach Mike Perry to a Gazette reporter. "They did a good job during crunch time. They didn't lose their composure. It was a good effort." Honorary coach, Larry Gissetto, and MHS math teacher, had only praise for the girls and their efforts.

The team also earned the Academic Excellence Award from the Massachusetts Inter-Scholastic Athletic Association for having achieved a grade point average of 3.2 for the season. Leading the way was Patty Coyle [98] followed by Julie Keane and Erin McKenna [96], Christianna Norvish [95] and Becky Dusek and Crissy Hannon [94].

So the Lady Sachems end their year and like Scarlett O'Hara in Gone With the Wind, they will, with optimism, look forward to next year.

New Blood! New Coach! New Team! That's how the boy's basketball started this season. Compared to last season, the players have learned to play together as a team instead of being individuals playing basketball. "We're playing better, we lost a couple tough ones. We have a lot of talent and I think we're playing together as a team more" said sophomore varsity player, Noah Couglin.

At the start of this season, those who were on last year's team through their losing streak (0-19), were expecting another bad season. To their surprise, this year's team has made upsets in the sport of high school basketball. Great efforts were made by defensive players Josh White, Noah Couglin (both elected to the Atlantic Coast All-Star Team), Mike Orlosky, Mike Dillon and D. J. Gallant. Even though more games were lost than won, the team still held together. Coach

Green worked hard on building up the intensity level and the team began to believe in themselves. The boys have played with pure guts and have become winner's to themselves.

The team's new outlook on the game can be credited to their new coach, Dennis Green. Mr. Green took over as head coach for the retired coach, Mr. Littlefield. Mr. Green was previously the J.V. coach and assistant varsity coach. When asked what he thinks a good player is he said that a good player is a student who gets involved in the sport even outside of school; a kid who goes to basketball camp and such. "A good player is the player who always practices."

Just because the season's over, the confidence and team play will not end. The team's new attitude and confidence will be a good stepping stone for 1996.

SWEAT, MUSCLE, AND POWER.

On the Mat!

Wrestling is a difficult sport to participate in because although it is a team sport, it is all based on an individual basis. Each participant must strive for their own personal excellence by studying how to get out of particular moves. This is a sport of dedication, strength, endurance, coordination, concentration, and determination.

On the way to each match, coach Barry Zonfrelli would tell the wrestlers, "Alright, silent bus ride! Concentrate on your match and what you will do. Go over everything that may happen and be prepared." The captains of this year, Jason Richards and Adam Carbone, took on a lot of responsibility as being four year wrestlers, they must lead each of the athletes and be a role model to the underclassmen.

The wrestling team had practice for two hours, five days a week. Even when the practices were finished, the training wasn't over yet. The wrestlers were encouraged to put extra hours in either running, lifting weights, or anything else that would give them the stamina to do well in their matches.

Even though the team did not win all their matches this year, the entire team learned a lot from each match and each has improved as an individual who will do well in all he or she does.

Cheerleading is a sport, too!

For the first half of the year, the Middleboro Sachem Cheerleaders spent their afternoons practicing their jumps, flips, and stunts. Co-captains Shauna Lemmo and Mary-Jo Bent worked very hard to keep their team in sync. During all of the Sachem's football games, the cheerleaders were there to give the team and the crowd spirit. Most people who attend the games know the cheers almost as well as the cheerleaders themselves. Imagine: five seconds left in the game, and the opponent is attempting a field goal. This will decide the game. First, you hear Shauna and Mary-Jo yell "Block those points Sachems!" Then the rest of the squad begins to cheer. Soon, all the spectators in the stands are chanting the cheer. Before you know it, the Sachems have blocked the points and won the game.

SPEED, STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE

What it takes to be a cross-country star.

The Croes-Country team started the season with eenior captain Ben Pickering and tranfer sophomore Garrett Holloway. In desperate need of a full roeter, eenior Rob Makarski, junior Dan Makareki, eophomores Mike Lucas and Kristen Leary, and freehman Frank Place joined the team. Everyday the team would run around town or the 2.8 mile Duxbury, or even 5 miles around the high echool track to build up their endurance. After their first meet with Marshfield, number one runner Ben Pickering was injured and was not able to run for the rest of the season. Through the next few meete, the seven member team went up againet oppoeing teams of approximately 20-30 combined people. For a variety of reaasons involving eome members of the team, the 1994 Croes-Country team was unable to complete the regular season. In anticipation of a larger equad with many new members next year, the team looks forward to a season with more eucces in 1995-96.

Why are there hurdles in the front lobby? or in the cafeteria? and why are there students running up and down the stairwells over and over again? It's the first ever indoor track team! This winter, many evenings were spent by the young men and women of the track team running through the corridors getting in shape to compete at the Wheaton College Indoor Track. New to the roster of MHS sports, due to a grant from Ocean Spray Corporation, there was an excellent turnout of over 30 enthusiastic members and the team roster expected to grow even larger next year.

The team, coached by Mr. Lawrence, had three MVP's this year, all of whom were juniors. Andrea Dixon and Kevin Boyle were long distance runners and Peter Abren was a thrower. Eleven members of the team (T. J. Lavin, Peter Abren, Emily Pollack, Sarah Soule, Kevin Boyle, Ben Pickering, Katy Ward, Andrea Dixon, Olive Stapleton, Joe Faria, and Josefine Rosenkuist) attended a league meet at Boston University where they competed against all the schools in the league.

The general attitude from the team was that they had a good season and that they gave a good show for their first year. Most of the team will be seen again on the track in the spring.

... AS A PEER GROUP

Somehow eighth grade is here and gone. It's the first day of school all over again. Only this time it's high school. At least when you went to kindergarten and first grade, you really didn't know enough to be scared. As a matter of fact, you actually wanted to go to school. It meant you were BIG. Now with fear and trembling, shaking knees and butterflies in the stomach, you wait for the bus to take you to an unknown future. Unknown? You certainly have heard enough rumors from your older friends and brothers and sisters. What if all those stories really are true? Will I be the unlucky one to be stuffed in a locker? Is there or isn't there a fourth floor pool?

Sound familiar? According to our sources, these are the thoughts and fears of the breed called, the underclassmen. Luckily, you are only a true underclassman for one year, the one called freshman. After that you are always an upperclassman to someone until you reach the top — A senior at last. So what is it like to be an underclassman? We asked a group of underclassmen exactly what terrifying experiences have happened to them.

"I was surprised that the Seniors were really nice and I didn't get any hassles from them." "I couldn't believe I was so scared. Nothing really happened."

"Joining a club with upperclassman was really helpful. I got to know them and they made my year a really good one."

"I never really noticed being an underclassman after my freshman year." "Being in classes with upperclassman showed me that we all learn about the same and we can all get along."

So ends the myth of being an underclassman. There may be hope for a peaceful world after all.

The first year of high school, however it turns out, is probably one of the more memorable years of most peoples' entire lives. As soon as we think we've grown up all the way, we become a freshman, and find that we've only just begun and that we're back at the beginning again.

Before entering high school, the freshmen usually hear a lot of myths that the upperclassmen are all big bullies. There are usually stories floating around MJHS about how the upperclassmen will send the incoming freshmen to a certain fourth floor swimming pool (that really does exist, and so does the indoor track on the 5th floor!) and horror stories about how the upperclassmen will stuff all the freshmen into their lockers (which sometimes is true, but only a small majority of this year's freshman class could actually fit into a locker!).

By the end of the second week of school, most of the ninth graders have realized that the upperclassmen are pretty nice (most of the time!) and that by their occasional teasing, they mean relatively no harm. In fact, toward the middle of the year, the freshmen realize that being at the bottom of the totem pole can actually be kind of fun. There are always people around to watch over the freshmen like big brothers and sisters and there are always people to whom the freshmen can go for advice.

It was especially so this year, with the initiation of the brand new "senior buddy" program. Last spring, when the freshmen were in eighth grade, they took a survey which helped the senior class to pair the freshmen up with seniors. Each senior who chose to participate was paired up with two or three freshmen. Over the course of the year, the freshmen could go to their senior with problems they had about anything at all: school, teachers, friends, or just life in general. At first, no one was sure if the program would work, but after just the first day, everyone knew it was a huge success. For the most part, the freshmen were really happy with their senior buddies. The program helped to smooth out all the worries the freshmen had about their first year here at MHS. Hopefully, the ninth graders in future years will realize how much fun it really is to be a freshmen!

FRESHMAN ORIENTATION

A few years ago, a program was started here at MHS called "Freshman Orientation." Its purpose is to smooth out the transition between junior high and high school. On the day before the official first day of school, the freshmen come to school without the commotion that comes with a school full of people. An assembly is held in the morning in which Mr. Brooks, Mr. McCarthy, Mr. Berry and Student Council representation introduce themselves and speak about the rules of the school. Classes are held so that the freshmen can get used to their schedules. Long locker breaks are held so that the freshmen can get used to their combinations. The program usually works well, and this year was no exception. It makes the official first day of school run smoother, overall, because there are a lot less confused freshmen clogging the hallways on the first day of school!

SOPHOMORES

For a whole year, the freshmen suffered through being at the bottom of the heap, the lowest of the low, the gum on the bottom of the upperclassmen's shoes. "Will it ever end?!", we asked.

Yes, it will. If the freshmen can survive their first year of high school, they will become sophomores! Being a sophomore is a unique experience. There is a whole new class of freshmen, and the familiar faces of the juniors and the seniors. Of course, after living through the "heck" that is freshman year, the sophomores are always nice to the new freshmen, right? Wrong!!!

The first new privilege of being a sophomore is being able to pick on freshmen! Unfortunately, sophomores aren't really considered upperclassmen yet, and juniors and seniors still love to pick on them.

"Wise fool." That's what sophomore means. Is it a fair description? Maybe. Some freshmen actually look up to sophomores. The freshmen may find one sophomore who is sympathetic to his/her plight, a sophomore who remembers and understands what it was to be a freshman. In this freshman's eyes, a sophomore is very wise.

However, the first person to ever use this term most probably was not a freshman. They were probably a junior or a senior, for both of these classes find sophomores to be "wise" in a very different way! Many upperclassmen find the overly self confident sophomore attitude very annoying. They still look down at the sophomores and consider them more foolish than anyone else!

Of course, not all sophomores fit this mold. Some of them are actually okay (misunderstood, maybe, but still okay). Sophomore year may be the hardest year of high school. One step higher on the ladder, but not yet at the top; the sophomores are still climbing. Yes, we will make it one day . . . copy by Jenn Bealer.

ANNUAL BUNNY SALE

Students always approach high school with apprehension, yet one aspect of high school they don't approach with apprehension is the bunny sales. Every spring, Mr. Brooks assembles the freshmen and sophomore classes, to psyche them up with anticipation of the bunny sales. The freshmen and sophomores then proceed to go into the community and the school with hopes that they will be the ones to sell the most bunnies, and therefore become Supreme Bunny-salesperson. There are numerous incentives for selling bunnies: getting money for your class, winning cash prizes and drawings, knowing that the sophomores, hopefully, will always sell more bunnies than the freshmen, and that you will be getting good chocolate in your Easter basket.

JUNIORS

One day you wake up, the first day of school . . . it's the beginning of your junior year. Your JUNIOR year. You have endured at least two years at good ol' MHS to be able to say, yes, I am a junior!!! I have climbed the hierarchical ladder and have joined the ranks of the Upperclassmen! Only one more year separates you from graduation. But, right now you don't think about that. You think about being sixteen and a half: your driver's license and that great photo of you on it. The anticipation of finding that special someone to go to the Junior Prom with . . . finding what you are going to wear to the Prom . . . what you are going to do at the Post-Prom party . . . Guidance is going to call you down and say, "So, have you thought about what you want to do after high school." More like, what don't you want to do, like go to school longer than the 12 years that you will have already been in school. But, you look forward with great hesitation and excitement at taking your PSAT's, and receiving piles and piles of mail from colleges in places that you have never heard of, like Tuscumbia, Alabama. You get to go to Alumni Day, and miss all your classes just so you can talk to MHS graduates. You are actually excited to go to pep rallies, just so you can yell when the cheerleaders yell out, "Juniors!", without being afraid to do so. U.S. History is finally here. Your last official year of history class, who are you going to ask for homework that you didn't do, this year?? You remember all the good times that you have had as you under go a transitional year, and you grow up and are ready to face, hopefully, your senior year.

JUNIOR PROM

Is it finally here?

Ever since freshman year, the class of 1996 has been earning and saving every penny possible, through many different fundraisers. Many Saturdays were spent at the parking lot, where the old Superplace used to be, washing cars. Many study periods were spent down in the cafeteria selling baked goods. Other fundraisers were attempted too, with very successful results! From the "Cookie Caper" to the Candy Cane Sales and "Murphy's Turkeys," a lot of money has been earned. "For what?" you might ask. This year, the class council could answer that question in one two words: Junior Prom. A prom can run up quite a bill, but luckily, through all that fundraising, our treasury was prepared. All year the prom committee worked hard on using the money wisely, in order to have the best junior prom possible. The class voted that the prom colors this year would be black, white, emerald green and silver; favors will be mugs and glasses; and music will be played by a v.j. as opposed to a d.j. The prom song is "This Is the Time to Remember," by Billy Joel, and it fits our theme, "A Time to Remember" perfectly.

To the Class of 1995, words of wisdom from other adults and the superintendent of schools do not come easily at this juncture in your lives. It is becoming increasingly more difficult for past generations to pass on guidance to those who follow.

Given this thought, as the superintendent of schools, let me offer not words but deeds as you move on to other endeavors. Should you at anytime in the future require our support, know that we stand ready to serve. Your graduation from Middleborough High School should not be interpreted as an end of a relationship, but rather as the beginning of a new community of people with a strong motivation to help you succeed. It is through your success that we, your teachers, find fulfillment. Take all the challenges ahead with the full knowledge that your teachers, your friends and your parents will always be here for you.

My congratulations go out to all of you! May you find all the happiness and success that life can bring. You have left your mark at Middleborough High School and you will be missed!

Michael S. Ippolito
Michael S. Ippolito, Ed.D.
Superintendent of Schools

To the Class of 1995:

In school as in life, it is important to find those things or people to inspire you to do your best.

LOOK for all the challenges that will bring out your talents and do more than is expected of you.

BE patient with others, your poise and reassurances will help to calm crisis.

CONTINUE your education, to better sharpen your skills.

BELIEVE in yourself and you will meet difficult situations and many of life's challenges with determination.

CARRY the passion for life so that what you do and who you are will be an inspiration to someone else.

Express yourself....

... AS THE LEADER OF THE PACK!

There is one time during your adolescent years that shines as a beacon of hope . . . your senior year. The Class of 1995 has now approached that special time in our lives. We have all traveled down long and different roads and here we all meet for a brief moment in time to share in the last chapter of our childhood and then depart to start a new book, hopefully meeting again to finish that book.

Is senior year really all that it is supposed to be? It was truly what you made it and what you felt the most comfortable doing. And it is also not a secret that everyone looked forward to this year. Some seniors were seen running around, stressed out about activities and classes like Nanzi Kanobana who thought this year was "tough," and Julie Keane who described her senior year in one word "busy." Other seniors chose to relax this year and major in lounge. Christian Correia thought this year had "been enjoyable . . . so far" and in one word Alan O'Brien described his senior year "early release." As we approached the "final countdown," as Nikki Semas described this year, we all had looked forward with apprehension to the future and the rest of our lives. However did we get through all of it alive?

SENIORS . . .

We always knew, that we would look back on the times we cried and laugh.

but who ever knew that we would look back on the times we laughed, and cry.

Almost Paradise

On May 21, 1994, the Junior Class and their guests arrived at MHS for a very special night. Instead of the traditional voting for the court, every female of the Class of 1995 was escorted by a fellow male classmate.

(1) Stacey Faul and Deneen Fernandes are escorted by Troy Booker. (2) Heather Lane and Julie Keane are escorted by Tim Dombrowski, and (4) Kristin Merrill is escorted by Brian Konush. (6) Class President Nikki Semas and VP Jim Piquette were selected as Prom Queen and King. The buffet, served by Good and Plenty Caterers, was enjoyed by almost everyone, but especially by (5) Vicki Perry and Jason Maynard who are seen here fighting over the macaroni. After a filling meal, everyone enjoyed the music and a (3) giant video screen provided by Squadron 16.

Friends, boyfriends and girlfriends enjoyed a long-awaited night under a canopy of balloons.

2. Michelle Whitman and Neil Bishop enjoy a slow dance.

FOREIGN EXPRESSIONS

October 3, 1994

Hi everybody!

You probably know who I am already. I guess you've already seen me around, you know that smiling face!? My name is Josefine Rosenkvist and I'm called Jo. Right now I am sixteen, but I'll turn seventeen in December. I come from Europe, Sweden actually, which means I speak Swedish. I live in a town next to the Vattern Lake. The town is Motala and it's not very different from Middleboro. Just a little chillier.

My biggest interests are singing and meeting new people. Most of the people I've met here have been nice to me, but I've been asked so many weird questions, such as if everybody in Sweden has blond hair and if we have bicycles made for two people. My host family, the Alisons, were total strangers when I first met them six weeks ago. But now I know them and I love them so much!

My favorite class is drama. I wish everybody could take it, because it's fun and it makes you more confident. You can't take it in Sweden though. We don't have any school teams either as we get out around 2:45-3:30 every day. But there are a lot of local things you can join. Anyway, school is the biggest difference so far. We have more freedom in Sweden and we call our teachers by their first names. My schedule is different too. I'm used to having a different schedule for each day of the week, but here every day is the same. And the breaks are at least ten minutes and lunch about an hour and the food is free.

If you for some reason ever should go to Sweden, come and visit me! But you can also write me a letter if you want to. And if you're thinking of being an exchange student, Go for it!

Love you all!

Jo.

Olivier Vella has already graduated from High School in his home country of France. But what about Middleboro High? Olivier says, "The subjects are interesting and the teachers take care of me." In Olivier's home school, classes begin at 8:10 a.m. and don't end until as late as 5:15! They have 2 breaks, one in the morning and one in the afternoon, each lasting 15 minutes, and an hour to eat lunch. "I can't eat in 20 minutes," he notes in his interview. Lunch isn't the only difference in the French system. They don't have classes on Wednesday afternoons, but on Saturday mornings you'll find students in class. What is Olivier's favorite part of MHS? The cheerleaders.

AH . . .THE MEMORIES!!!

The Class of '95 The Early Years.

Who can forget the fire at the D.B. Burkland School and our year at the Sacred Heart Parish Hall? Or, How about the seventh grade Green Team trip to New York City? Or the trip to Acadia, we didn't get! Through thick and thin, good times and bad, the Class of '95 has been through it all. This yearbook isn't just a reflection of the '94-'95 school year, it's a collection of memories shared by each member of our class.

'95 has been one of the most active and original classes to pass through good 'ole MHS. Our freshman year began with a rocky start when we were labeled as the "failing" class, but we managed to pull through and look what a GREAT class we've become. From the start we've been busy. In the fall, a few hardy souls rented themselves out to rake leaves to raise money for our treasury. This proved to be a laborious task. For the first time ever, a class entered a float in the Christmas Parade (we won a plaque). We also sold those infamous chocolate bunnies in the spring. Was it 200, Mel? As for fun, many members of that freshman class enjoyed a trip to Riverside Amusement Park in the spring of 1992.

Our sophomore year was a very productive one. During Spirit Week, the "Super Sophomore Sackem" banner came in second place. That fall our class once again rented themselves out as leaf-rakers. In November, the creative efforts of the class were shown on the Christmas float which promoted our next project — Breakfast With Santa. The breakfast turned out to be successful as well as fun. Once again, our class sold bunnies in the springtime, but we also worked hard to put on a Spring Carnival. A trip to Canobie Lake Park finished up our sophomore year.

Pre-prom preparation.

Kim, Jenn, Kaisa and Kristen enjoy a fall day while raking leaves.

Lisa, Amanda, Jodi, Jason and Deneen wait for Santa.

"Santa's" helpers made breakfast a delight.

Jim is slip-sliding in spa-ghet-ti.

Jess is "clowning around" at the Spring Carnival.

New York, New York! Green Team '90.

Jenn is all smiles on the last day of eighth grade.

Old-fashioned fun on a cold winter's day.

Finally — Upperclassmen!

Junior year was a busy one for many of us. The Class Council was working on making the prom a very successful one. We were thinking up fund-raisers. AGAM! Our banner once again took second place during Spirit Week and juniors reigned as King and Queen. Many of us began our college search to find that "perfect school." Some of the junior girls competed with the senior girls in the Powder Puff football game. Unfortunately, our team lost, by inches. We were cheated! but we claimed the title for our senior class. We had some "Old Fashioned Fun" during the Christmas parade on the junior class float. Adam wears antlers well. And who can forget the ever-famous Spaghetti Wrestling? It's doubtful that those who participated ever will. Rose, cream, and forest green were the colors, "An Evening In Paradise" was the theme, "Almost Paradise" was the song. What was it? The Junior Prom, of course! This proved to be an evening of fun and excitement. We danced the night away with the first ever video dj. YMCA!!!

Now as we finish the final chapter of our high school years together, we should remember all the good times we've had. We finally got to have class meetings in the auditorium. Who's going to throw the toilet paper during a class meeting. We finally won first place for our "Senior Spirit" banner, and we spent all our free time in the lounge. Remember the exhausting college application process, and the happiness of the envelope containing the acceptance letter and the excitement when they measured us for our cap and gown. Could graduation be that near? Don't forget Class Night, the Senior Prom, Last Assembly, and finally — Graduation. And most of all, always keep the memories of your friends, teachers, classmates, and mentors alive.

Lastly, keep the spirit of MDS alive, 'cause we're the Class of '95! See you at our first reunion.

Senior Favorites: Room in MHS: the Lounge. Teacher: Mrs. Dodge. Class: Study. Radio Station: 94.1 HJY. Musical

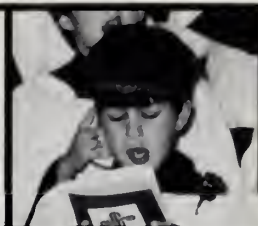

“a FAVORITE story”

Once upon a time, the Class of 1995 was sitting in the LOUNGE while skipping MRS. DODGE’S class, dreaming that their only class would be STUDY. The whole world by now had heard that Mrs. Rossini would not let them turn on the radio to 94.1 WJHY, so the BEASTIE BOYS came to MHS in a MUSTANG and gave the seniors a television so they could watch MTV and “SABOTAGE” all day. SEINFELD had a whole show about changing the radio station in the office. RICKI LAKE did a talk show about MHS seniors who major in lounge. COSMOPOLITAN picked up on the popularity of the Class of 1995 and did a full fashion layout. GAP and CUMBERLAND FARMS asked the seniors if they would star in commercials. With its new found fame, MHS was relocated to FLORIDA and a mountain was built in the back with snow-making machines so the seniors could still go SKIING. Because they didn’t want ANY JOB AT ALL, the Class of 1995 took off for the MAUL’S HOUSE, wearing their new lounge NIKE’S, stopping by FRIENDLY’S first for a bite to eat with their new friends the DALLAS COWBOYS. When they got to the Maul’s, everyone enjoyed watching FORREST GUMP with their MOMS while eating CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM.

Mom. Ice Cream: Chocolate. Group: Beastie Boys. Car: Mustang. Video: “Sabotage” by the Beastie Boys. TV Show: Seinfeld. Talk Show Hostess: Ricki Lake. Magazine: Cosmopolitan.

To the Members of the Class of 1995.

You did it! You made it to graduation! Each and every one of you has reason to feel proud of yourself. All of you have had obstacles to overcome throughout the last 12 years, both in your personal life and at school, but you came through and now face an exciting, if sometimes scary, future.

Some of you I have known from nursery school, some of you I have met along the way, and others I still do not know well. Being your class advisor has been an experience I'll never forget. We've laughed and cried; plotted and planned; agreed and disagreed. We've raked leaves, shared donuts and hot chocolate, and spaghettied it out. I'll miss you.

School is about teaching and learning, and so is life. My heartfelt wish for all of you is expressed in these words from an unknown author:

After a while you learn the subtle difference between holding a hand and chaining a soul.

And you begin to learn that love doesn't mean leaving and company doesn't mean security.

And you learn that kisses aren't contracts and presents aren't promises.

And you learn to accept your defeats with the grace of a woman or man- not the grief of a child.

And you learn to build all your roads on today because tomorrow's dreams have a way of falling down in midflight.

After awhile you learn that even sunshine burns if you ask too much, So you plant your own garden instead of waiting for someone to bring you flowers.

After awhile you learn that you can endure, that you are strong and you really do have worth; and you learn - and you learn with every good-bye - you learn.

GOODBYE! GOOD LUCK! GODSPEED!

Mrs. JF.

To Crystal [Pelrine] — my Honey Bun — I'm very proud of you! — I love you bunches and Bunches! all my love, Mom.

My precious grandson came to us August, 1977 and I have survived his humorous seventeen years. Good luck, Jim. Love, Nana.

Matt [Prisco], All our love and best wishes for your future plans. Congratulations! Love, Mom and Dad.

Kristin [Romer], You are special to us and we wish you the BEST. Congratulations! Love, Nana and Bumpa.

Kaisa G.

We've laughed and cried,
Argued and talked,
Understood and misunderstood,
Prayed and questioned,
And through it all —

There has always been LOVE.

In all the places you'll go,
And all the adventures you'll have

That love goes with you, Always.

If you need me, I'll be here for you.

COMMUNITY? How does it tell who we are and what we are? Certainly the place in which we live and go to school tells something about us. As students we are here because this is where our families live. Yet as we graduate some of us will leave Middleborough, first to go to school and then when we have jobs that may take us anywhere in the world. Some of us will not leave town and will carve a niche for ourselves here. For some, this is the place where their families have lived since the days of the Pilgrims while others have lived in other towns, cities, states and even countries.

Middleborough is a place of businesses, schools, churches and homes. Described as the "Cranberry Capital of the World," the town celebrated its 325th anniversary this year with a variety of activities; but the most important event this year for the town as a whole, was the days of glory in August when the Little League All Stars went the distance to compete in the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa. Although they didn't make the final game, they put the community on the map and even in California, people knew there was a place in New England called Middleborough.

How do students feel about Middleborough? Bill Robbins, a freshman said "it's a good place to live. There's enough to do and not all the violence in other places." Senior Becky Harr "felt some parts are good and some aren't, but all around it's not too bad." Sasha Cummings, who has just come from living abroad most of her life, feels "it's too quiet" and Kara Hedglin says "it's too small. Everyone knows your business." Actually a large portion of high school students can't wait to fly away and see if the grass is greener on the other side of the hill.

For those who have decided that Middleborough is the place to live, they express their commitment to the community by serving on town boards and committees, volunteering their time as coaches and tutors, etc. The businesses that appear in this section have expressed their interest and commitment to the students through their ads. Support them as they have supported our efforts.

Spring and Graduation

"Despite posting a poor record during the 1994-1995 baseball season, many of the underclassmen stepped up their game. Juniors Mike Orlosky, Alfie Cacciatore, and Jeff Morse pitched very well. Senior T. J. Lavin was nominated for the Brockton Enterprise All-Scholastic Team while Keith Horseman was voted by his teammates as M.V.P."

TEAMWORK AND SPIRIT

This team never gives up

Sachem baseball coach, Mike Perry, believes in his young team. Although the Middleboro baseball team did not have a winning season, they had many players of whom to be proud. Their combination of outstanding offense and defense has made the Sachems one of the most respected teams in the Atlantic Coast League.

Despite Brian Konish, Mike Dillon, Pat Callahan, and Mike Enos being on the disabled list for a good part of the season, the team had some outstanding players this year. Alfie Cacciatore and "Rookie of the Year," BJ MacCaulay, both had averages over .400.

MVP Keith Horseman's arm is getting strong and stronger while Pete Farley got better with each game. Pitcher, Mike Orlosky, was named "Most Improved." Solid innings of pitching were turned in by Bryan LeBlanc, Jeff Morse, and Dustin Soule.

Mike Perry said of his team: "Towards the end of the year all these tournament-bound teams kept pitching their aces against us. I was wondering why, until some of the other coaches told me that word had gotten around the league that we were crushing the ball. It turns out, they were afraid of us."

HIT! RUN! SCORE!

The Lady Sachems are not softies.

They dedicated themselves to a season that they will all remember long after the season is just a memory. The team practiced six times a week for over three months. It was worth every second. The Lady Sachems ended with a season record of 16-2 (one game short of making this their fourth league championship in a row). They placed second in the Atlantic Coast League behind Randolph.

"The key to the success of the varsity softball team is talent, dedication, and team unity. There are no individual stars; just a lot of dedicated people who are willing to give 100% at all times," said Jen Tarr, a junior who played first base for the team this year.

"It took a lot of determination to come back for such a strong season; after losing five starters (players) last year," said Tarr. It was a really young team that was never expected to do as well as they did. All Star Senior Captain Kristin Merrill led the team with outstanding play at shortstop and the highest batting average. Merrill led the Atlantic Coast League in extra base runs and RBI's. "Senior Wendy Morgan kept the defense strong with great plays from third base," Sullivan said. The team frequently relied on underclassmen to fill vacant positions. Juniors Jen Tarr (first base), Julie Warren (catcher), and Leanne Tarkanian (pitcher) were elected All Stars.

"The prospects are looking excellent. Next year we will have a year of seasoning under our belts. We have the potential to be a great team," Sullivan said.

Jen Tarr defends first base.

The team gathers together for some pre-game strategies.

This year Mrs. Sullivan (a.k.a. "Sully") is a veteran 15 year varsity coach at MHS.

"I love softball." Kelly has been playing ball since the age of seven, when she started T-ball. When asked about this year she responded: "I think we're really good, we've done a lot better than expected. Everyone is always cheering each other up." Team spirit is great on the team.
— Kelly Butler

"Softball is a sport that everyone on the team misses when it's over, and waits all year for it to come around again. A lot of the other teams we're on aren't that successful, but when softball's here you can bet on us winning. Our team works great together. We have the perfect combination. Everyone can count on each other, and we all contribute in our own way. I guess that's what I love the most about it. If you don't have team unity, then you don't have a team at all." — Julie Warren

Despite a full JV squad and a growing varsity team, the men's tennis squad was not quite ready for the top teams of the state. This year's team had a lot of close calls, but not quite close enough. Coach Everett Clark noticed their effort and said "Our league is tough, but our kids are getting a lot better, faster than the other teams in the league." These "kids" worked hard and should be given recognition. Amongst these players were Grant Harrison, Adam Capps, Craig Besagai and Paul Delano. They played well in the double teams and pulled away with many wins. In the singles action, Olivier Vella, Dan Boyle and Chris Hilton gave a hand to the team's efforts. Senior Captain Chris Hilton was the only member of the team to be nominated for the ACC All-Star team. As a whole, the boy's tennis team made improvements as the games went by and Clark was pleased with their endurance. "We have a lot of young people with good experience, so we should continue to improve" stated their enthusiastic coach. The team knows that practice makes perfect, but they also know that winning isn't everything. With this in mind, they practice for a better season next year.

THE Aggressive Women Of Tennis

"... after 5 and 1/2 years
Let's enjoy it."

A stronger than ever team of 10 determined women took MHS out of their five-year last place position in the ACL. With a 4-1 victory over Whitman-Hanson, the team won their first game since defeating Carver five and a half years ago. MHS went on to further victory winning more games, and ended the season by defeating Carver. Co-captains Kaisa Holloway and Julie Keane were nominated for the ACL All-Stars Team and received the team's MVP award for serving as the strong foundation for MHS tennis. Becky Dusek also received an honorable-mention to the ACL All-Stars Team. Congratulations, AWOTs!!

MILE, METER, JAVELIN Around the Track

MHS had the most talented team, athlete for athlete, in the league. Unfortunately they didn't have enough athletes to score enough points to win, going 1-8 in the season. Despite a strong core of athletes, the Sachems just didn't have the fruit on numbers. Without enough bodies to actually win a meet, the Sachems settle for individual triumphs.

The Girls' Track team was often referred to as "The Tenacious Ten" and it's not hard to see why. The captains of the girl's team were juniors Kelly Gillis, a 100 and 300 meter hurdler and Andrea Dixon, a mile and 800 meter runner. The only senior on the team was high jumper Kristin Pettine. Other juniors on the team were Krissy and Kathy McCusker whom were the Sachem's shot put and discus throwers. The sophomore members were Sarah Soule, who ran the 400 and 200 meters and threw the javelin, Kristen Leary who ran the mile and 2 mile. Amy St. Martin was another high jumper. Emily Pollock was their injured boosting member of the team. The 800 meter was also run by sophomore Karen Asmussen. "We have a good nucleus of young people. If we can just get more athletes to come out, we will have plenty of success," MHS coach Brian Ruonsville said.

For the Boys' Track, the only senior on this team was Greg Bell, who was also the MVP. Up and coming juniors were Peter Abren, who threw the discus and the shot put; Kevin Boyle, another junior, was the Sachem's top miller. The sophomore members included long jumper, John Connors, and Matt Farris, who was the 800 meter runner and a long jumper. When asked how next year's team will do, Coach Rich Starsiak said, "We have some freshmen who will help us rebuild the program and we are only losing one senior, so the prospects are good if we can just get some more kids to come out."

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT #17

The Cast of "That's Entertainment" 1995

The "That's Entertainment" tradition was carried on this year, from the opening song, "That's Entertainment," to the finale starting with "What I Did For Love." The theme this year was "Anything Goes," and anything did. Popular tunes from the 20's through the 80's were sung, including medleys from "Grease," "Hair," "Jesus Christ Superstar," and "Pippin." Musicals weren't the only source of entertainment, there were disco numbers, the ever popular "Time Warp," and of course, Monty Python sketches. Senior choreographers Heather Lane and Julie Keane, who have performed dance numbers together since their freshman year, danced their last dance to the song "Dream Girls."

As the Angels reminded us at the beginning of the show, "You can make 'em laugh, you can make 'em cry . . ." and though most of the smiles seen on stage were genuine, a few tears were shed as seniors stood up during "What I Did For Love." The cast was awarded with standing ovations for all their hard work, hopefully putting smiles on those faces once again.

Introducing the show are STW officers Julie Keane, Nikki Semas, Catherine Kamp, Heatherly Lane and Greg Bell. Missing: Kaisa Holloway

"J.C., J.C., won't you smile at me?" Matt Campbell keeps a straight face.

Senior Week

It's finally here! Only seven more days left and counting. This week is full of traditions. On Monday, caps and gowns are distributed. The cafeteria is full of seniors wondering, "Will my cap fit?" "Is my gown too long?" After that, the fun begins! Every student, including underclassmen, look forward to the morning after the scavenger hunt to see what the seniors have collected. Finally, on the last day of classes the seniors drive around the school, honking and celebrating, traditionally known as the "cavalcade."

Seniors, L. Gillis and M. Elder (above) and B. Holmes, N. Semas, and C. Hiltz (below) take part in "After MHS Day."

It's Saturday, May 6. The Class of 1995 is performing the seniors annual CLASS NIGHT.

Class night marks the beginning of the senior "end of the year" activities. It's a chance for seniors to let loose and make fun of themselves, the faculty, etc. 1) Mr. Brook's Sundae Monday turns deadly as everyone comes down with a case of Brain Freeze. 2) "Look at me, I'm Sandra Dee." 3) and at the class reunion, Leah gets revenge.

BARBECUE

The Friday before Senior Last Assembly, the graduating class celebrated with the Senior BBQ. 1) Sharing a last moment are Maryjo Bent and Chris Correia. 2) The "Gourmet Entree." 3) "Turkey" eats some chicken. 4) K. Tubman, J. Poskus, A. Handorff, K. Hollick, E. Zion share a final lunch together.

"In Your Eyes"

were tears of laughter and tears of parting as the Class of 1995 gathered with their date and faculty members at Independence Harbor in Assonet for the Senior Prom. It was a beautiful night, the gardens were beautiful, the food was great for some and just "ok" for others, but here they were all dressed up and looking fine. Everyone will have their special memories, but who can forget Manzi's reaction on being selected "KING" and yes, NULFE, that was your name called to be QUEEN. After the coronation with the Royal Couple's official dance and then a few more dances, everyone departed via limo or car to those "after prom" parties at the beach, at a friend's or wherever. Breakfast at Bickford's anyone?

Kaisa Holloway as Class Marshall

All of the years, all of the hard work, finally amounts to your future. For these students this day was a milestone. For most it was a day of great emotion; joy, triumph, sadness and loneliness, and the first step towards graduation preparation. Many are recognized at Senior Last Assembly for various accomplishments in Art, Music, Academics, Athletics and Organizations. Jamie Matthews was named the Valedictorian of the class of 1995 and Joseph Preti was named Salutatorian. As in the past, the gavel was passed down from the 1995 Student Council President Rebecca Holmes to Lisa Baptiste, the newly elected President for 1996.

Graduating Seniors were not the only ones who received recognition. Mrs. Lillian Heskiith (Secretary to the Principal) and Mrs. Jane Dodge (Class of '95 favorite teacher) each received a floral bouquet from the graduating class. Other ceremonies included the National Honor Society presentations, Silver "M" Society Induction, Music from the A Capella Choir, and yearbook presentations in loving memory of William Martin, John Mellon, Adam Brochu and Jason Ross to their families. All in all, it was a memorable occasion, and many tears were shed that day at both the assembly and reception afterwards.

BACCALAUREATE

Another senior tradition still in place for MHS Seniors is the Baccalaureate service sponsored by the Middleboro-Lakeville Clergy Association. Baccalaureate is the sermon given to graduates and on June 6th, seniors gathered at the First Congregational Church of the Green to hear Father Wenshoff (above left) encourage them to fly like eagles, to be all that they can be and not settle for the familiar and the comfortable. Members of the class took part in the service and various pastors from the community offered prayers on behalf of the Class of 1995.

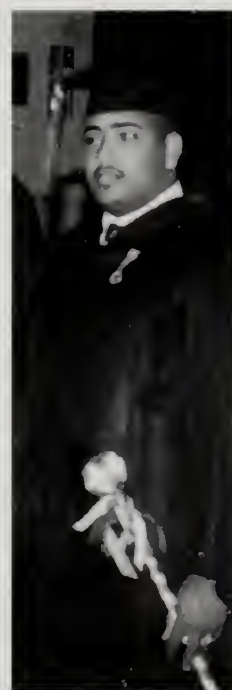

Marshalls, Melanie Furlong and Heatherly Lane, lead the procession.
